The House And The Art Of Its Design:

THE HOUSE and The Art of its Design Robert Woods Kennedy, 1953 The Architect, the Cook and Good Taste Petra Hagen Hodgson, Rolf Toyka, 2007-03-29 Since time immemorial cooking and building have been among humanity's most basic occupations. Both of them are rooted in necessity but both of them also possess a cultural as well as a sensory aesthetic dimension. And while it is true that cooking is a transitory art form it gives expression to the periods of human cultural history just as architecture does. Moreover both arts accord a central role to the materials employed. Both involve measuring and proportioning, shaping and designing, assembling and composing. This book pursues the astonishing parallels and deeply rooted connections between the art of building and that of cooking. A variety of essays takes up questions of materiality and proportioning. Attention will also be given to food cultivation and architecture to the places where meals are prepared as well as a range of different culinary spaces. With articles by Annette Gigon, Stanislaus von Moos, Claudio Silvestrin, Ian Ritchie and others. Twelve Modern Houses, 1945-1985 Graham Livesey, University of Calgary. Canadian Architectural Archives, Michael McMordie, Geoffrey Simmins, 1995. This publication part of the ongoing mandate of the Canadian Architectural Archives to examine the characteristics of Canadian architecture as reflected in the collections of the University of Calgary Library examines twelve architect created houses designed between the 1940s and the 1980s for several distinct regions of Canada. The architects chosen number among the most prolific and best known in Canada who were working during this period including Raymond T Affleck, Raymond Moriyama, Arthur Erickson, Douglas Cardinal, John B Parkin Associates and Patkau Architects. Other architects with perhaps a more regional reputation have also been included such as the Vancouver based firm of McCarter Nairne, Calgary's Jack Long and Edmonton's Peter Hemingway. Apart from the documentation of the twelve houses, drawings and photos, there are interpretative essays on each. A co-authored introductory essay explores several related themes: modernity, the contemporary house, approaches to landscape and the role of drawings in contemporary practice. The Horticulturist and Journal of Rural Art and Rural Taste, 1861 The Printing Art, 1921 Westminster Part II: The Art, Architecture and Archaeology of the Royal Palace Warwick Rodwell, Tim Tatton-Brown, 2020-04-27 Westminster came into existence in the later Anglo Saxon period and by the mid 11th century when Edward the Confessor's great new abbey was built it was a major royal centre two miles south west of the City of London. Within a century or so it had become the principal seat of government in England and this series of twenty-eight papers covers new research on the topography, buildings, art, history, architecture and archaeology of Westminster's two great establishments, Abbey and Palace. Part I begins with studies of the topography of the area, an account of its Roman period finds and an historiographical overview of the archaeology of the Abbey. Edward the Confessor's enigmatic church plan is discussed and the evidence for later Romanesque structures is assembled for the first time. Five papers examine aspects of Henry III's vast new Abbey church and its decoration. A further four cover aspects of the later medieval period: coronation and Sir George Gilbert Scott's impact as the Abbey's greatest Surveyor of the Fabric. A pair of papers examines the development of the northern precinct of the Abbey around St Margaret's Church and the remarkable buildings of Westminster School created within the remains of the monastery in the 17th and 18th centuries. Part II part deals with the Palace of Westminster and its wider topography between the late 11th century and the devastating fire of 1834 that largely destroyed the medieval palace. William Rufus's enormous hall and its famous roofs are completely reassessed and comparisons discussed between this structure and the great hall at Caen. Other essays reconsider Henry III's palace, St Stephen's chapel, the king's great chamber, the Painted Chamber, and the enigmatic Jewel Tower. The final papers examine the meeting places of Parliament and the living accommodation of the MPs who attended it, the topography of the Palace between the Reformation and the fire of 1834, and the building of the New Palace, which is better known today as the Houses of Parliament.

Modern in the Middle Susan Benjamin, Michelangelo Sabatino, 2020-09-01. The first survey of the classic twentieth-century houses that defined American Midwestern modernism. Famed as the birthplace of that icon of twentieth-century architecture, the skyscraper, Chicago also cultivated a more humble but no less consequential form of modernism: the private residence. Modern in the Middle: Chicago Houses 1929-75 explores the substantial yet overlooked role that Chicago and its suburbs played in the development of the modern single-family house in the twentieth century. In a city often associated with the outsized reputations of Frank Lloyd Wright and Ludwig Mies van der Rohe, the examples discussed in this generously illustrated book expand and enrich the story of the region's built environment. Authors Susan Benjamin and Michelangelo Sabatino survey dozens of influential houses by architects whose contributions are ripe for reappraisal, such as Paul Schweikher, Harry Weese, Keck Keck, and William Pereira. From the bold early example of the Battledock House by Henry Dubin (1930) to John Vinci and Lawrence Kenny's gem, the Freeark House (1975), the generation-spanning residences discussed here reveal how these architects contended with climate and natural setting while negotiating the dominant influences of Wright and Mies. They also reveal how residential clients, typically middle-class professionals progressive in their thinking, helped to trailblaze modern architecture in America. Though reflecting different approaches to site, space, structure, and materials, the examples in Modern in the Middle reveal an abundance of astonishing houses that have never been collected into one study until now.
