Healthcare Using Marine Organisms Se-Kwon Kim, 2018-03-14. The chapters are organized well and the preface explains how the concept of food is changing over time and how marine organisms are considered as healthy food. P. N. Sudha, DKM College for Women, Tamil Nadu, India. The relationship between food and health has been a growing concern in modern society and the importance of information on their connection has elevated accordingly. People are becoming prone to diseases due to the deterioration of the environment. Despite a growing interest in preventative medicine in the healthcare sector, few medications can be called preventative drugs. Foods may exhibit completely different functions in a living body depending on whether their components are simple substances providing energy and nutrition or valid functional entities. This book covers all aspects of healthcare solutions through marine-derived materials with twenty-six chapters exploring an array of topics pertaining to human health in everyday life. Beginning with an introduction to food functionality and disease presentation, Chapters Two to Nine discuss chitin, chitosan and the production and application of chitosan oligosaccharides regarding anti-cancer, anti-aging and antioxidant activity. Furthermore, utilization of these cationic polysaccharides in artificial skin development, the prevention of alcohol consumption, dentistry, systemic diseases, prevention of Alzheimer's dementia are discussed in subsequent chapters. In Chapters Ten and Thirteen, I discuss obesity, osteoporosis, sexual dysfunction and sleep disorders using fisheries products. Additionally, Chapters Fourteen to Eighteen detail the use of marine algae to treat diabetics, allergy, asthma, AIDS and hair loss, as well as the use of fisheries products for hypertension and athlete's foot. Chapters Twenty Two through Twenty Six then shed light on the anti-aging effects of fish, the abundance of taurine in shellfish, antifreeze protein, food shortages through fish breeding and cosmeceutical product development using marine organisms.
