The Home Front Stirling 1939-1945:

Sport and the Home Front Matthew Taylor, 2020-05-31 Sport and the Home Front contributes in significant and original ways to our understanding of the social and cultural history of the Second World War. It explores the complex and contested treatment of sport in government policy, media representations and the everyday lives of wartime citizens. Acknowledged as a core component of British culture, sport was also frequently criticised, marginalised and downplayed, existing in a constant state of tension between notions of normality and exceptionality, routine and disruption, the everyday and the extraordinary. The author argues that sport played an important yet hitherto neglected role in maintaining the morale of the British people and providing a reassuring sense of familiarity at a time of mass anxiety and threat. Through the conflict, sport became increasingly regarded as characteristic of Britishness, a symbol of the ordinary everyday lives in defence of which the war was being fought. Utilised to support the welfare of war workers, the entertainment of service personnel at home and abroad, and the character formation of schoolchildren and young citizens, sport permeated wartime culture, contributing to new ways in which the British imagined the past, present and future. Using a wide range of personal and public records, from diary writing and club minute books to government archives, this book breaks new ground in both the history of the British home front and the history of sport.

The chapters that follow look at the structure of the RAF from the Air Ministry and Chief of the Air Staff down to squadron level, to include each of the Commands including Transport Command, a creation of the war years. The main aircraft types used are listed, as well as a full listing of squadrons and airfields in the British Isles. The training of personnel and such matters as uniforms, rank insignia, medals and life on a typical airfield are also covered. The main battles or campaigns in which the service was involved are also described.
