transition from segregation to integration Poree learned to be resourceful early convincing the owner of a nearby grocery store to give him a job cleaning the store and organizing the shelves He went on to start his own business polishing hardwood floors while in the seventh grade His love for music eventually helped him earn a scholarship at Xavier University in New Orleans and from there he was on his way From his teaching career to his successes as a business executive and civic leader Poree shares his memories of real people real places and real divisions His hope is that you'll be emboldened encouraged and inspired to achieve your own dreams Pursuing a Promise F. Erik Brooks, 2006

In Statesboro Georgia two schools coexisted one white and the other black Yet these schools were intertwined by their geographical location and the traditions of the segregated South There are many glaring similarities between the white students of Georgia Southern University's forerunner the First District A M School and the black students of the Statesboro Industrial and High School Yet as happened all too often in the South as implementation of the federal court's desegregation orders took shape Negro schools were downgraded or outright closed Statesboro was no different While First District A M became a regional university Statesboro Industrial and High School was downgraded to a junior high school In 1961 integration on the higher education level at Georgia's flagship university captured national attention Few works if any have examined desegregation in the context of non flagship universities Likewise there is a misguided mythology that desegregation occurred quietly at Georgia Southern University it's clear that while there was not the violence and rioting seen elsewhere in Southern universities blacks were marginalized and did not feel welcome at the college A passive group after the initial integration blacks adopted tactics of protest and confrontation to empower themselves Taking a page from the Civil Rights Movement black students and faculty established organizations to confront discrimination and gain access to campus leadership positions This is a story about the defeats victories struggles and developments of blacks at Georgia Southern University
