✓ Exclusively available on IvyPanda

School-aged children are likely to be abused due to their vulnerability and dependency. Child abuse's signs include guilt, confusion, aggression, hostility, depression, amnesia, and deviance. For emotional abuse, the child may experience a loss of self-esteem, enthusiasm, poor school performance, and loss of ability in existing developmental skills. Maltreatment can also be indicated by poor school attendance, poor hygiene, behavioral problems such as stealing, and poor grooming (Zeanah & Humphreys, 2018). If there is sexual abuse, the child may have genital pain, bleeding, pregnancy, and inappropriate knowledge of sexual behavior.

Patients are registered for abuse and neglect by evaluating signs and symptoms. Nursing diagnosis for a child that is abused and maltreated can include the following:

- Acute pain due to physical abuse as well as physical injuries.
- Malnutrition due to neglect of care.
- Poor growth or development.
- Insomnia.
- Anxiety.
- Fear.
- Social isolation.
- Trauma due to sexual molestation or rape.
- Malnutrition (Zeanah & Humphreys, 2018).

Different cultures utilize folk health remedies such as cupping, coining, and moxibustion. Such methods may create skin marks such as purpura and petechiae, which are likely to resemble physical abuse. For instance, cupping is used in part of Latin America, the Middle East, and Asia as a therapy for pain, lack of appetite, and fever (Viero et al., 2019). Russian immigrants in the United States are also known to use cupping. Vietnamese Americans practice coining or cao gio to cure headaches and fever. A similar method known as Quat sha is used by Chinese Americans to free the body from illnesses. These procedures can cause burns and bruises on the skin, which

Understanding Child Maltreatment Maria Scannapieco, Kelli Connell-Carrick, 2005-02-10 Child maltreatment professionals from all disciplines struggle to find better ways of understanding and treating the families and children affected by maltreatment Since the mid 1960s the battered child syndrome and recent high profile abuse cases a plethora of research and literature on child maltreatment has emerged yet this is the first volume to offer a comprehensive integrated analysis for understanding assessing and treating child maltreatment within the ecological framework in a developmental context This framework systematically organizes and integrates the complex empirical literature in child maltreatment and development including the often overlooked period of adolescence Viewing child maltreatment from an ecological perspective this volume identifies the risk and protective factors correlated with abuse and neglect The authors present a comprehensive assessment framework addressing the multiple developmental and environmental factors unique to each case This framework fully considers risk and protective factors and their relationship to individuals families and environmental elements presenting a much needed perspective for today s child protective services workers Understanding Child Maltreatment is the first of its kind While most books broadly address the developmental consequences of maltreatment this volume goes further by proposing assessment and intervention strategies based on a deep understanding of each stage of a child s development

Interventions center on the caregiver and the family with particular attention to parenting skills and the challenges the child may experience within his or her developmental stage Each chapter emphasizes empirically based interventions and includes a case illustration that guides readers in applying these concepts to their own practice Providing a comprehensive nuanced perspective on maltreatment this book will be invaluable to students researchers and professionals Child Maltreatment Dante Cicchetti,Vicki Carlson,1989-06-30 Over forty contributors including highly regarded researchers in the field present the most recent findings on the impact of abuse and neglect on cognitive linguistic social and emotional development in children Developmental Assessment of the School-aged Child with Developmental Disabilities M.
