Coining for Capital Jyotsna Kapur, 2005-07-11 Since the 1980s a peculiar paradox has evolved in American film Hollywood's children have grown up and the adults are looking and behaving more and more like children In popular films such as Harry Potter Toy Story Pocahontas Home Alone and Jumanji it is the children who are clever savvy and self sufficient while the adults are often portrayed as bumbling and ineffective Is this transformation of children into little adults an invention of Hollywood or a product of changing cultural definitions more broadly In Coining for Capital Jyotsna Kapur explores the evolution of the concept of childhood from its portrayal in the eighteenth century as a pure innocent and idyllic state the opposite of adulthood to its expression today as a mere variation of adulthood complete with characteristics of sophistication temptation and corruption Kapur argues that this change in definition is not a media effect but rather a structural feature of a deeply consumer driven society Providing a new and timely perspective on the current widespread alarm over the loss of childhood Coining for Capital concludes that our present moment is in fact one of hope and despair As children are fortunately shedding false definitions of proscribed innocence both in film and in life they must now also learn to navigate a deeply inequitable antagonistic and consumer driven society of which they are both a part and a target
