With the introduction of antibiotics acute inflammatory disease has ceased to be the dominant problem in general medical practice and its place is now increasingly occupied by chronic inflammatory disease of which the rheumatic diseases constitute the most important group. Two aspects of these diseases need to be considered their aetiology and their pathogenesis. In some respects the latter is more important since even when the aetiology is known as for example the haemolytic streptococcus in rheumatic fever the mechanism by which the infecting agent accomplishes the development of the lesions that characterise the disease are still largely unknown. Still more so is this the case in rheumatoid arthritis and other chronic inflammations where the aetiological agents are unknown. In an attempt to clarify the pathogenic mechanisms involved several attempts have been made to induce comparable lesions in experimental animals partly to test underlying hypotheses and partly to provide test situations for the trial of new therapeutic agents. In view of the deficiencies in the current drug treatment of chronic inflammatory disease there are many who feel that this is largely due to the inadequacy of the models available for test purposes.

Dry Eye Disease Penny A. Asbell, Michael A. Lemp, 2011-01-01 Here is the ultimate guide to managing the most frequently encountered problem in the eye patient dry eye disease. Dry Eye Disease: The Clinician's Guide to Management provides the latest diagnostic techniques, new approaches for classifying patients and state of the art evidence based medical and surgical treatments. The book opens with a review of the epidemiology and the multifactorial etiologies of dry eye disease. The authors guide the reader through taking a thorough patient history, conducting the diagnostic examination and using clinical tests to make a confident evaluation of the severity of the disease. In their discussion of both medical and surgical techniques for management the authors describe common treatments such as punctal plugs, lid treatment, artificial tears as well as innovative treatments including autologous serum drops, stem cell transplantation and more. Highlights: Contributions from such internationally known experts as Shigeru Kinoshita, M. Reza Dana, Maurizio Rolando, Kazuo Tsubota, Kelly Nichols, Janine Smith, J. Daniel Nelson, Jay S. Pepose, Mark J. Mannis, Friedrich E. Kruse, Teruo Nishida and others. Thorough discussion of new and emerging diagnostic tests including tear osmolarity, impression cytology, corneal permeability and visual function enables readers to expand and sharpen their techniques. A bullet point list of key points at the beginning of each chapter is ideal for rapidly reviewing important concepts. Numerous tables organize the results of clinical surveys of common symptoms and factors associated with dry eye disease. An extensive list of references as well as a chapter covering online resources helps the reader keep abreast of the newest research. This is a timely reference for all ophthalmologists, optometrists and trainees in these specialties. It is essential reading for practitioners treating contact lens wearers and refractive surgery patients as well as patients with glaucoma and age related macular degeneration.
