Jablonski, 2006-10-05 We expose it cover it paint it tattoo it scar it and pierce it Our intimate connection with the world skin protects us while advertising our health our identity and our individuality This dazzling synthetic overview written with a poetic touch and taking many intriguing side excursions is a complete guidebook to the pliable covering that makes us who we are Skin A Natural History celebrates the evolution of three unique attributes of human skin its naked sweatiness its distinctive sepia rainbow of colors and its remarkable range of decorations Jablonski begins with a look at skin's structure and functions and then tours its three hundred million year evolution delving into such topics as the importance of touch and how the skin reflects and affects emotions She examines the modern human obsession with age related changes in skin especially wrinkles She then turns to skin as a canvas for self expression exploring our use of cosmetics body paint tattooing and scarification Skin A Natural History places the rich cultural canvas of skin within its broader biological context for the first time and the result is a tremendously engaging look at ourselves The Fats of Life Caroline M. Pond, 1998-08-13 This book aims to fill the gap between unscientific comments about the hazards and benefits of high fat or low fat diets and weight control found in magazines and technical and medical reports about lipid biochemistry and obesity It aims to explain in simple language the biology of feeding and fasting fattening and slimming in wild animals as well as people Topics include where fat comes from and how animals and plants handle them their natural roles in migration mating breeding and living in unpredictable habitats such as deserts and arctic regions and their contributions to our cookery paints and medicines The physiological mechanisms of digesting transporting and utilising energy stores are discussed along with the contribution of fatty tissue to body insulation and the protection of delicate organs Archaeological anthropological and physiological evidence is assembled to explore how when and why people have become fat and how evolutionary forces have determined the modern diversity of body shape and size The book ends with a brief account of the contribution of dietary fats and obesity to health in the modern world

Percepts, Concepts and Categories B. Burns, 1992-10-09 The most important distinction derived from the computational view of thought is between structures and processes So proclaimed Farah and Kosslyn in 1982 arguing that structures and processes cannot be examined in isolation and concluding that converging operations are required to isolate the structure process pair that can explain a particular finding The distinction between structure and process within the study of percepts concepts and categories is considered in depth in this volume with penetrating commentaries by fellow authors concluding each chapter This interesting format achieves a broad coverage of the various aspects and implications of the structure process distinction It affords a salient indication of the diversity of positions as to the description and utility of distinguishing structures and processors At the same time it reveals that researchers specializing in areas of study ranging from simple structure and process involved in perceptual organization and texture to complex structure and process associated with reading graphs and chess expertise do utilize such a distinction in similar ways The analysis is organized into four major parts within the book Early Visual Representation and Processing Percepts Concepts Categories and Development Categories Concepts and Learning and Higher Order Representation and Processing
