

A Declaration by the Representatives of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA in General Congress assembled

SLAVERY

AND THE

FOUNDERS

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. Whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, & to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles & organizing its Powers in such form, as shall seem most likely to promote their Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light & transient causes; but when the Population of a Colony or State shall have declared that they are united to the United States, they should be free to alter or to abolish it, & to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles & organizing its Powers in such form, as shall seem most likely to promote their Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light & transient causes; but when the Population of a Colony or State shall have declared that they are united to the United States, they should be free to alter or to abolish it, & to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles & organizing its Powers in such form, as shall seem most likely to promote their Happiness.
