Art of Darkness , Night Windows Jonathan Smith,2012-07-26 Someone has stolen Patrick Balfour s identity A successful headmaster of a London school a regular broadcaster and a writer of historical novels as well as having a fairly spicy private life Balfour is the object of some unsurprising envy Yet who would be so malicious as to commit identity fraud and frame Patrick as a thief and a paedophile using his national insurance number and impersonating his handwriting As Patrick is teased by a series of letters it becomes apparent that his adversary is certainly better read than him and he is sent off on a tense literary chase picking up clues from Kafka s The Trial to R L Stevenson and to Joseph Clark a 17th Century contortionist Patrick s morale begins to collapse the police don t believe him and his daughter rejects him Desperate he decides he must pursue his pursuer Identity Poetics Linda Garber,2001 What do we now know about the origins of plants on land from an evolutionary and an environmental perspective The essays in this collection present a synthesis of our present state of knowledge integrating current information in paleobotany with physical chemical and geological data

enclosed bed truck without markings of any kind Lying on its left side its right front wheel was still turning like a giant beast feeling the impulse to move as it lay dying Smoke drifted up from the engine But there was a strange silence There were no calls for help no signs of movement and no other cars in sight Charlie stumbled and scrambled down the steep bank calling for someone to answer him But he heard nothing Through the broken windshield he could see the driver who appeared dazed with blood on the left side of his head from an unseen cut but he was moving Since the drivers door was pressed into the dirt Charlie knew the man could only escape through the passenger door which was now on top So Charlie climbed up to open it Gravity made the task much harder than he expected but he did get it open Keeping it open would be a full time job so Charlie lowered the window and let the door fall back into place By then the driver was alert struggling to free himself and crying out in pain at each movement Just lay still Charlie said Ill go get some help Theres no time for that cried the tortured man the engine is burning already and I dont have an extinguisher Lying on the trucks passenger door with his head in the side window Charlie almost pleaded How can I help He could see the mans bleeding leg trapped in the wreckage Could it be freed in time Pull me loose the man shouted in pain and panic offering Charlie his hand Charlie pulled
