

Thomas R.R. Cobb

The monument across the road marks the spot where General Thomas R. R. Cobb suffered a mortal wound. A brilliant Constitutional lawyer prior to the war, he left his practice to take up arms for the South. At Fredericksburg Cobb fought his first battle as a brigadier general in command of a Georgia brigade. He was determined to do well. When told before the battle that he must fall back if the troops on his left gave way, Cobb growled, "Well if they wait for me to fall back, they will wait a long time."

Erased in the office, this image of General Cobb is one of the earliest monuments in the park. This photograph was taken about 20 years after the monument was erected.

Cobb fell when a Union artillery shell crashed through the Stephens house, behind you, and exploded, sending shrapnel into his thigh. He would die a few hours later. Although Cobb was a Georgian, his mother had grown up in Fredericksburg. Her childhood home, "Federal Hill," stood on the outskirts of town within sight of Cobb's position (trees and postwar houses obscure the view today). Later accounts claimed that the shot that killed Cobb was fired from the vicinity of his mother's house.

Cobb unsuccessfully is a delegate to the National Congress of the Confederate States before leaving his post for the South. This old photograph shows him in the uniform of Lt. Col. Leggett.

Hewitt,Arthur W. Bergeron,Thomas E. Schott,2013-04-30 Until relatively recently conventional wisdom held that the Trans Mississippi Theater was a backwater of the American Civil War Scholarship in recent decades has corrected this oversight and a growing number of historians agree that the events west of the Mississippi River proved integral to the outcome of the war Nevertheless generals in the Trans Mississippi have received little attention compared to their eastern counterparts and many remain mere footnotes to Civil War history This welcome volume features cutting edge analyses of eight Southern generals in this most neglected theater Thomas Hindman Theophilus Holmes Edmund Kirby Smith Mosby Monroe Parsons John Marmaduke Thomas James Churchill Thomas Green and Joseph Orville Shelby providing an enlightening new perspective on the Confederate high command Although the Trans Mississippi has long been considered a dumping ground for failed generals from other regions the essays presented here demolish that myth showing instead that with a few notable exceptions Confederate commanders west of the Mississippi were homegrown not imported and compared well with their more celebrated peers elsewhere With its virtually nonexistent infrastructure wildly unpredictable weather and few opportunities for scavenging the Trans Mississippi proved a challenge for commanders on both sides of the conflict As the contributors to this volume demonstrate only the most creative minds could operate successfully in such an unforgiving environment While some of these generals have been the subjects of larger studies others including Generals Holmes Parsons and Churchill receive their first serious scholarly attention in these pages Clearly demonstrating the independence of the Trans Mississippi and the nuances of the military struggle there while placing both the generals and the theater in the wider scope of the war these eight essays offer valuable new insight into Confederate military leadership and the ever vexing questions of how and why the South lost this most defining of American conflicts The Confederate General: Gordon, George W. to Jordan, Thomas ,1991 Howell Cobb's Confederate Career Horace Montgomery,1959 Confederate Military History Clement A.
