The Massachusetts Miracle High Technology And Economic Revitalization:

The Massachusetts Miracle David Lampe, 1988 A collection of essays and policy statements addressing the economic situation in Massachusetts over the last decade and a half

Technology-Based Regional Economic Development Akio Nishizawa, David V. Gibson, 2024-10-08 Regional technology based economic development and the recruitment and retention of talent is a top priority of city regions in the United States and in countries around the world However policy recommendations from government officials industry leaders and academics are often ambiguous or are in conflict To address these issues this book deals with the complex intersection of institutional theory and national and regional policy initiatives It provides an overview of United States and Japanese technology policy development at the national level with case analyses of Austin Texas and Tsuruoka Japan to identify key regional strategies and processes that have resulted in successful endogenous technology based business development and job creation It offers an innovative analytical perspective to improve our understanding of how successful tech based regional economic development works in theory and practice The book's discussion is grounded on important technology paradigm shifts in the US and Japan from 1970 to 1980 leading to current realities To address the complex Puzzle of Space conundrum the authors describe similarities and differences in regional development processes in Austin and Tsuruoka They present a generalizable model indicating necessary and sufficient conditions linked to the building of new Small i institutions at normative and cognitive levels of analysis in consort with regulative policy and innovations at macro level Capital I institutions The book clearly explains the relations between institutions and economic growth an important issue in contemporary economics The book's conclusions clarify critical success factors for endogenous regional development growth theory and lead to recommendations for policymakers who are searching for ways to achieve success

Latino Poverty and Economic Development in Massachusetts Edwin Meléndez, Miren Uriarte-Gastón, 1993

Don't Blame Us Lily Geismer, 2017-01-31 Don't Blame Us traces the reorientation of modern liberalism and the Democratic Party away from their roots in labor union halls of northern cities to white collar professionals in postindustrial high tech suburbs and casts new light on the importance of suburban liberalism in modern American political culture Focusing on the suburbs along the high tech corridor of Route 128 around Boston Lily Geismer challenges conventional scholarly assessments of Massachusetts exceptionalism the decline of liberalism and suburban politics in the wake of the rise of the New Right and the Reagan Revolution in the 1970s and 1980s Although only a small portion of the population knowledge professionals in Massachusetts and elsewhere have come to wield tremendous political leverage and power By probing the possibilities and limitations of these suburban liberals this rich and nuanced account shows that far from being an exception to national trends the suburbs of Massachusetts offer a model for understanding national political realignment and suburban politics in the second half of the twentieth century

Pathways to High-Tech Valleys and Research Triangles Willem Hulsink, J. J. M. Dons, 2008-05-23 About the book The contents of most of the chapters included in this volume were originally presented and discussed during the academic workshop High tech Valleys and Research Triangles in the East of the Netherlands and elsewhere held on 30 November and 1 December 2005 at the Wageningen International Congress Centre WICC in the Netherlands At that time we had an informal agreement with Rob Bogers series editor of the Wageningen UR Frontis book series that if the quality and quantity of the talks and papers at the seminar would be sufficient and if there was willingness among the potential authors an edited book volume based upon the results of the workshop would be a possibility After the workshop when we had a critical mass of ten chapters and a dedicated group of committed authors the book project was given the green light As editors we realized that there were still a couple of topics and themes missing and when we had found colleagues for these four additional chapters that needed to be written our Frontis book was on the roll Although most of the time it was great fun the whole process of writing reviewing rewriting editing and proofreading took a lot of time much more time than we originally had foreseen We would like to thank all authors of the fourteen chapters of this book for their excellent contributions

The Boston Renaissance Barry Bluestone, Mary Huff Stevenson, 2000-06-29 This volume documents metropolitan Boston's metamorphosis from a casualty of manufacturing decline in the 1970s to a paragon of the high tech and service industries in the 1990s The city's rebound has been part of a wider regional renaissance as new commercial centers have sprung up outside the city limits A stream of immigrants have flowed into the area redrawing the map of ethnic relations in the city While Boston's vaunted mind based economy rewards the highly educated many unskilled workers have also found opportunities servicing the city's growing health and education industries Boston's renaissance remains uneven and the authors identify a variety of handicaps low education unstable employment single parenthood that still hold minorities back Nonetheless this book presents Boston as a hopeful example of how America's older cities can reinvent themselves in the wake of suburbanization and deindustrialization A Volume in the Multi City Study of Urban Inequality

Technopoles of the World Manuel Castells, 2014-01-14 Technopoles planned centres for the promotion for high technology industry have become a key feature of national economic development worldwide Created out of a technological revolution the formation of the global economy and the emergence of a new form of economic production and management they constitute the mines and foundries of the information age redefining the conditions and processes of local and regional development This book is the first systematic survey of technopoles in all manifestations science parks science cities national technopoles and technobelt programmes Detailed case studies ranging from the Silicon Valley to Siberia and from the M4 Corridor to Taiwan relate how global technopoles have developed what each is striving to achieve and how well it is succeeding Technopoles of the World distills the lessons learnt from the successes and failures embracing a host of disparate concepts and a few myths and offering guidelines for national regional and local planners and developers worldwide

The Great Boom 1950-2000 Robert Sobel, 2016-02-09 In The Great Boom historian Robert Sobel tells the fascinating story of the last 50 years when American entrepreneurs visionaries and ordinary citizens transformed our depression and war exhausted society into today's economic powerhouse. As America's GI's returned home from World War II, many of the nation's best minds predicted a new depression, yet exactly the opposite occurred. Jobs were plentiful in retooled factories swamped with orders from pent-up demand. Tens of thousands of families moved out of cities into affordable suburban homes built by William Levitt and his imitators. They bought cars, televisions, and air conditioners by the millions. And they took to the nation's roads and new interstate highways, the largest public works project in world history, where Kemmons Wilson of Holiday Inns, Ray Kroc of McDonalds, and other start-up entrepreneurs soon catered to a mobile populace with food and lodgings for leisure time vacationers. Americans and their families began to channel savings into new opportunities. Credit cards democratized purchasing power while early mutual funds found growing numbers of investors to fuel the first postwar bull market in the go-go 60s. At the same time, the continuing boom enriched the fabric of social and cultural life. A college education became a must on the highway to upward mobility; high-tech industries arose with astonishing new ways of conducting business electronically; and an unprecedented 49 million families had become investors when the 1981-2000 stock market boom reached 10,000 on the Dow. The Great Boom is the first major book to portray the great wave of homegrown entrepreneurs as post-war heroes in the complete remaking and revitalizing of America. All that plus the creation of unprecedented wealth for themselves and for the nation for tens of millions of citizens all in five short, drama-filled decades.

Global City Regions Roger Simmonds, Gary Hack, 2000. Based on funded research of 13 city regions across three continents, this comparative study looks at changes in land use since 1970. The socio-economic and physical forms of city regions have also been examined for comparative study.

Entrepreneurship and Openness David B. Audretsch, Robert Litan, Robert J. Strom, 2009-01-01. Entrepreneurship is critical to economic growth, but it cannot flourish without open markets. Entrepreneurs can only be expected to take risks in open settings where individuals and firms are free to contract with one another. In this important book, leading economists explain and document the role of open markets within and across national boundaries in facilitating entrepreneurship, innovation, and economic growth. The main message of this book is especially timely given growing concerns in developed countries about offshoring and openness to trade. The book includes discussions of star scientists, entrepreneurs, and their positive impacts on local growth; the globalization of venture capital; information technology; entrepreneurship and cities; culture, offshoring, trade, competition, and the expansion of world trade. This book will be welcomed by policy makers at all levels of government, university leaders, and academic scholars in entrepreneurship, business, and management, innovation, economics, sociology, and urban economics.
