European Union's Role at the Millennium Review Summit Great Britain: Parliament: House of Lords: European Union Committee, 2005 The Millennium Review Summit in September 2005 will see the UN heads of state and government

reviewing how the United Nations can deliver freedom from want fear and oppression for all the world s peoples Four agendas will be addressed development security human rights and democracy and reform of the UN institutions This report looks at the EU s role in the United Nations and at what the EU can do to make a successful outcome at the Review more likely The Committee praises the EU s policies on increasing development aid and on the responsibility to protect in cases of genocide ethnic cleansing and other crimes against humanity Other areas where the EU and the British government should strive for progress at the Review are the strategy against terrorism nuclear non proliferation supporting the Secretary

General s proposals for reform of the UN institutions and secretariat Ancient Europe Stuart Piggott, 2017-09-05 This book interprets the main lines of European prehistory from the first agricultural communities in the sixth or even seventh millennium B C until the incorporation of much of barbarian Europe within the Roman Empire It traces the beginnings of animal domestication and plant cultivation in ancient Western Asia and the transmission of these skills by movements of peoples or by assimilation in the European continent The early technology of working in copper and later in bronze is discussed Metal winning and working and trade in raw materials and finished products brought social and political repercussions to barbarian and civilised peoples alike The spread of the Indo European languages is considered in its archaeological context as is the formation of the Celtic peoples soon to acquire iron technology and to become the main barbarian component in Europe side by side with the civilised Mediterranean societies Greek Etruscan or Roman The later Celtic world of Europe and the British Isles is examined and an attempt made to estimate the contribution of the older barbarian world to the Europe which emerged from the ruins of the Roman Empire geographically the book ranges over the whole European field from the Atlantic shores to the Urals and the Caucasus While it does not pretend to be a prehistory of Europe within the period chosen the book does bring together and discuss for the first time much scattered and often little known archaeological evidence This book is organized in a manner that will permit it being read on two levels For the general non specialist reader the text and illustrations should give a sufficient idea of the nature of the theme and of the evidence and of the development of the barbarian cultures side by side with the civilizations of antiquity as their precursors and their subsequent counterparts For the archaeological student however the text is documented with rather full references and notes at the end of each chapter

The Oxford Handbook of Religion and Europe Grace Davie, Lucian Leuștean, 2022 Features contributions from leading scholars providing crucial insight into the role of religious ideas structures and institutions in the making of Europe Introduces the building blocks of Europe's religious and the part that they played in the formation of the continent Explores the relationship between religious communities and ideologies in the twentieth century connections that play out very differently in East and West Europe Examines the role of religion in the construction of the European Union from the end of the Second World War until the present day Assesses the relationship between the major world religions and the idea of Europe Book jacket

Building Europe Cris Shore, 2013-11-05 The development of the European Union has been one of the most profound advances in European politics and society this century Yet the institutions of Europe and the Eurocrats who work in them have constantly attracted negative publicity culminating in the mass resignation of the European Commissioners in March 1999 In this revealing study Cris Shore scrutinises the process of European integration using the techniques of anthropology and drawing on thought from across the social sciences Using the findings of numerous interviews with EU employees he reveals that there is not just a subculture of corruption within the institutions of Europe but that their problems are largely a result of the way the EU itself is constituted and run He argues that European integration has largely failed in bringing about anything but an ever closer integration of the technical political and financial elites of Europe at the expense of its ordinary citizens This critical anthropology of European integration is essential reading for anyone with an interest in the culture and politics of the EU

Europe in the First Millennium B.C. Kristian Kristiansen, Jørgen Jensen, 1994-01 The first millennium BC is crucial for our understanding of Europe as it emerges from Prehistory What were the processes that led to the emergence of the states tribes and ethnic groupings which we encounter in the earliest historical sources What techniques can we use to study these complex societies for which our main source of information is purely or largely archaeological What results have the recent upsurge in information and new theoretical approaches produced In this volume a group of European scholars discuss these and other theoretical and methodological questions with a number of case studies taken from a wide range of areas and periods extending from Iberia to Poland from eastern Europe to Scandinavia

Local Societies in Bronze Age Northern Europe Nils Anfinset, Melanie Wrigglesworth, 2014-10-14 This book aims to understand the process of the Bronze Age societies of Northern Europe which are often regarded as the periphery and a bleak contrast to the Central European Bronze Age. The Bronze Age is the first globalised period with new types of societies and new modes of exchange and trade. In this context there is considerable local variation and diversity within the Bronze Age societies of Northern Europe which is poorly understood although there have been advances and changes in this research. Therefore this book challenges some of the mainstream opinions on the Bronze Age of Northern Europe and focus on local and regional aspects. This is done by a series of articles from significant contributors that deal with these issues on theoretical and empirical levels with regards to differences cultural dualism boundaries regions and regionality in a period of increased globalisation. The result is a movement away from local and regional aspects toward communications travels and contacts between northern Europe and the greater world not only towards Central Europe and the Near East but also towards the east. Northern Arctic Europe is often left out in these discussions and this book will contribute to this greater picture of the Bronze Age world.
