

IN CONGRESS. JULY 4, 1776.

United States of America unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such Principles and organizing its Powers in such form, as shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness.

Prudence, in such a case, would dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that even the most arduous struggle for Liberty may be carried on with more safety and honor, with less blood and confusion, than a rash attempt to abolish the old Government, and to institute a new one. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object, evinces a design to reduce us to absolute Tyranny, it is our duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for our future Liberty.

Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies, that they have borne the longest Sufferance on the Earth, without being able to shake off their Burden. But now it is time to part, and to stand as free Men, free of all other Allegiance, but to the Allegiance of the Great Architect of the Universe.

And for the support of this Declaration, we the Representatives of the thirteen united States of America, do hereby sign and seal our Names, and the Seal of the said United States, in Witness whereof, we have hereunto set our Hands and the Seal of the said United States, at the City of Philadelphia, this fourth day of July, 1776.
