The Masters Plan:

Race and Redistricting in the 1990s Bernard Grofman, 1998 A portrait of how the 1990s round of redistricting treated the racial and linguistic minorities that had been given special protections by the Voting Rights Act of 1965 primarily African Americans but also Native Americans Asian Americans and those of Spanish heritage Throughout the volume the primary focus is on the practical politics of redistricting and its consequences for racial representation Almost all the authors have been directly involved in the 1990s redistricting process either as a legislator a member of the Voting Rights Section of the Justice Department a member of a districting commission or most commonly as an expert witness or lawyer in voting rights cases All bring to bear special insights as well as insider knowledge of Congressional and state redistricting

Formisano, 2012-01-01 Perhaps the most spectacular reaction to court ordered busing in the 1970s occurred in Boston where there was intense and protracted protest Ron Formisano explores the sources of white opposition to school desegregation Racism was a key factor Formisano argues but racial prejudice alone cannot explain the movement Class resentment ethnic rivalries and the defense of neighborhood turf all played powerful roles in the protest In a new epilogue Formisano brings the story up to the present day describing the end of desegregation orders in Boston and other cities He also examines the nationwide trend toward the resegregation of schools which he explains is the result of Supreme Court decisions attacks on affirmative action white flight and other factors He closes with a brief look at the few school districts that have attempted to base school assignment policies on class or economic status
