

MANPOWER STRATEGY FOR DEVELOPING COUNTRIES

Lectures From Ethiopia

Eli Ginzberg and Herbert A. Smith

The authors, drawing on their field investigations in Ethiopia in 1966 and on earlier studies in Asia and Latin America, provide a new analytic model for the role of manpower in economic development. They delineate and assess the relations between manpower and the key sectors—agriculture, industry, education, and government—in terms of the development of manpower supply, demand, and utilization.

While they focus on correlating manpower with broad economic policy aimed at speeding development, the authors make clear that manpower is more than an economic resource and must be dealt with within a broad social and political context.

THE NEGRO POTENTIAL

Eli Ginzberg

"An outstanding analysis of the economic enfranchisement of Negroes . . . (the author) presents not only objective conclusions about the nature of segregation, but many sound proposals for developing and utilizing more fully the potentialities of Negroes."

—R. C. WEAVER, American Sociological Review

"The Negro Potential is as timely as today and as challenging as the tomorrow that may put the nation's manpower potential to its severest test."

—J. S. REDDING, New York Times
