this knowledge alive and relevant The Portent and Other Stories George MacDonald,2013-05-13 My father belonged to the widespread family of the Campbells and possessed a small landed property in the north of Argyll But although of long descent and high connection he was no richer than many a farmer of a few hundred acres For with the exception of a narrow belt of arable land at its foot a bare hill formed almost the whole of his possessions The sheep ate over it and no doubt found it good I bounded and climbed all over it and thought it a kingdom From my very childhood I had rejoiced in being alone The sense of room about me had been one of my greatest delights Hence when my thoughts go back to those old years it is not the house nor the family room nor that in which I slept that first of all rises before my inward vision but that desolate hill the top of which was only a wide expanse of moorland rugged with height and hollow and dangerous with deep dark pools but in many portions purple with large belled heather and crowded with cranberry and blaeberry plants Most of all I loved it in the still autumn morning outstretched in stillness high uplifted towards the heaven On every stalk hung the dew in tiny drops which while the rising sun was low sparkled and burned with the hues of all the gems Here and there a bird gave a cry no other sound awoke the silence I never see the statue of the Roman youth praying with outstretched arms and open empty level palms as waiting to receive and hold the blessing of the gods but that outstretched barren heath rises before me as if it meant the same thing as the statue or were at least the fit room in the middle space of which to set the praying and expectant youth The Portent & Other Stories George MacDonald,2011-11 This book is part of the TREDITION

CLASSICS series The creators of this series are united by passion for literature and driven by the intention of making all public domain books available in printed format again worldwide At tredition we believe that a great book never goes out of style Several mostly non profit literature projects provide content to tredition To support their good work tredition donates a portion of the proceeds from each sold copy As a reader of a TREDITION CLASSICS book you support our mission to save many of the amazing works of world literature from oblivion The Portent and Other Stories George MacDonald

George MacDonald,2017-06-29 MY DEAR SIR KENSINGTON May 1864 Allow me with the honour due to my father s friend to inscribe this little volume with your name The name of one friend is better than those of all the Muses And permit me to say a few words about the story It is a Romance I am well aware that with many readers this epithet will be enough to ensure condemnation But there ought to be a place for any story which although founded in the marvellous is true to human nature and to itself Truth to Humanity and harmony within itself are almost the sole unvarying essentials of a work of art Even The Rime of the Ancient Mariner than which what more marvellous is true in these respects And Shakespere himself will allow any amount of the marvellous provided this truth is observed I hope my story is thus true and therefore while it claims some place undeserving of being classed with what are commonly called sensational novels Beiträge Zur Biologie Der Pflanzen

J U Kern (max Muller),2019-08-03 This is a reproduction of the original artefact Generally these books are created from careful scans of the original This allows us to preserve the book accurately and present it in the way the author intended

Since the original versions are generally quite old there may occasionally be certain imperfections within these reproductions We re happy to make these classics available again for future generations to enjoy The Portent and Other Stories George MacDonald, 2021-04-11

On the opposite side the valley another hill lay parallel to mine and behind it at some miles distance a great mountain As often as in my hermit s cave I lifted my eyes from the volume I was reading I saw this mountain before me Very different was its character from that of the hill on which I was seated It was a mighty thing a chieftain of the race seamed and scarred featured with chasms and precipices and over leaning rocks themselves huge as hills here blackened with shade there overspread with glory interlaced with the silvery lines of falling streams which hurrying from heaven to earth cared not how they went so it were downwards Fearful stories were told of the gulfs sullen waters and dizzy heights upon that terror haunted mountain In storms the wind roared like thunder in its caverns and along the jagged sides of its cliffs but at other times that uplifted land uplifted yet secret and full of dismay lay silent as a cloud on the horizon I had a certain peculiarity of constitution which I have some reason to believe I inherit It seems to have its root in an unusual delicacy of hearing which often conveys to me sounds inaudible to those about me This I have had many opportunities of proving It has likewise however brought me sounds which I could never trace back to their origin though they may have arisen from some natural operation which I had not perseverance or mental acuteness sufficient to discover From this or it may be from some deeper cause with which this is connected arose a certain kind of fearfulness associated with the sense of hearing of which I have never heard a corresponding instance Full as my mind was of the wild and sometimes fearful tales of a Highland nursery fear never entered my mind by the eyes nor when I brooded over tales of terror and fancied new and yet more frightful embodiments of horror did I shudder at any imaginable spectacle or tremble lest the fancy should become fact and from behind the whin bush or the elder hedge should glide forth the tall swaying form of the Boneless When alone in bed I used to lie awake and look out into the room peopling it with the forms of all the persons who had died within the scope of my memory and acquaintance These fancied forms were vividly present to my imagination I pictured them pale with dark circles around their hollow eyes visible by a light which glimmered within them not the light of life but a pale greenish phosphorescence generated by the decay of the brain inside Their garments were white and trailing but torn and soiled as by trying often in vain to get up out of the buried coffin
