The Art Of The Turkish Tale:

The Art of the Turkish Tale Barbara K. Walker, 1990 In casting them into English Walker has paid particular attention to capturing the flavor and excitement of the Turkish telling while not infringing on the narrator's right to have the tale recreated as he had told it The Beauty power and appeal of the present volume for the general reading public however depends largely upon Barbara Walker's own consummate skill as a teller and re-teller of tales and her commitment to conveying as much of the Turkish performance context as possible In a gesture which is perhaps symptomatic of the reasons for this volume's success Barbara Walker recognizes in the Acknowledgments section each and every tale teller by name all forty of them ranging in age from nine to ninety and coming from the many different walks of life both urban and rural to be found in twenty out of Turkey's seventy-four provinces from Mugla to Kars and from Istanbul to Diyarbakir In presenting the works of all these generous bearers of tradition to an English speaking audience she has achieved her aim of opening a small window on the art of the Turkish tale in a volume which stands as a tribute to the art of book making as well Sarah Moment Atis Chair Middle East Studies Program University of Wisconsin Madison President Turkish Studies Association This will stand as a fine quintessential contribution One hears the whispers of the original voices in these versions all of which are artful recast in colloquial rhythms and couched in a style that conveys the substance the shape the spirit and the sumptuousness or the simplicity of the tale Talat Sait Halman Turkey's former Minister of Culture then Ambassador for Cultural Affairs now Professor of Near Eastern Languages and Literatures New York University

Cyrus Adler, Allan Ramsay, 2020-09-28 Not far from the famous Mosque Bayezid an old Hodja kept a school and very skilfully he taught the rising generation the everlasting lesson from the Book of Books Such knowledge had he of human nature that by a glance at his pupil he could at once tell how long it would take him to learn a quarter of the Koran He was known over the whole Empire as the best reciter and imparter of the Sacred Writings of the Prophet For many years this Hodja famed far and wide as the Hodja of Hodjas had taught in this little school The number of times he had recited the Book with his pupils is beyond counting and should we attempt to consider how often he must have corrected them for some misplaced word our beards would grow gray in the endeavor Swaying to and fro one day as fast as his old age would let him and reciting to his pupils the latter part of one of the chapters Bakara divine inspiration opened his inward eye and led him to pause at the following sentence And he that spends his money in the ways of Allah is likened unto a grain of wheat that brings forth seven sheaves and in each sheaf an hundred grains and Allah giveth twofold unto whom He pleaseth As his pupils one after the other recited this verse to him he wondered why he had overlooked its meaning for so many years Fully convinced that anything either given to Allah or in the way that He proposes was an investment that brought a percentage undreamed of in known commerce he dismissed his pupils and putting his hand into his bosom drew forth from the many folds of his dress a bag and proceeded to count his worldly possessions Carefully and attentively he counted and then recounted his money and found that if invested in the ways of Allah it would bring a return of no less than one thousand piasters Think of it said the Hodja to himself one thousand piasters One thousand piasters Mashallah a fortune So having dismissed his school he sallied forth his bag of money in his hand and began distributing its contents to the needy that he met in the highways Ere many hours had passed the whole of his savings was gone The Hodja was very happy for now he was the creditor in Allah s books for one thousand piasters      Historical Dictionary of Turkey Metin Heper,Nur Bilge Criss,2009-01-21 Turkey is both an old and a new country While the Turks have been living in Anatolia for the last millennium the country has gone through extensive Westernization since the end of the 18th century However in the case of Turkey tradition has not arrested modernization rather the traditional has adapted itself to the modern The revival of Islam and the emergence of certain ethnic identities during the recent decades have not led to the reversal of progress in the economy and democracy There is a thriving private sector and the economy continues to grow At the turn of the 21st century Turkey is the only Muslim country with a democratic political system Although Turkey belongs to both the West and the East its Western credentials are more marked It is a member of the Council of Europe North Atlantic Treaty Organization NATO and Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development OECD and it is presently carrying out negotiations with the European Union EU for accession to that Union as a full member The third edition of the Historical Dictionary of Turkey explores the history of this fascinating country through a chronology an introductory essay a bibliography and hundreds of cross referenced dictionary entries on important persons places events and institutions as well as on significant political economic social and cultural aspects
