No Place for a Lady Shelby Tisdale, 2023-06-20 In the first half of the twentieth century the canyons and mesas of the Southwest beckoned and the burgeoning field of archaeology thrived Among those who heeded the call Marjorie Ferguson Lambert became one of only a handful of women who left their imprint on the study of southwestern archaeology and anthropology In this delightful biography we gain insight into a time when there were few women establishing full time careers in anthropology archaeology or museums Shelby Tisdale successfully combines Lambert's voice from extensive interviews with her own to take us on a thought provoking journey into how Lambert created a successful and satisfying professional career and personal life in a place she loved the American Southwest while doing what she loved Through Lambert s life story we gain new insight into the intricacies and politics involved in the development of archaeology and museums in New Mexico and the greater Southwest We also learn about the obstacles that young women had to maneuver around in the early years of the development of southwestern archaeology as a profession Tisdale brings into focus one of the long neglected voices of women in the intellectual history of anthropology and archaeology and highlights how gender roles played out in the past in determining the career paths of young women She also highlights what has changed and what has not in the twenty first century Women s voices have long been absent throughout history and Marjorie Lambert s story adds to the growing literature on feminist archaeology

Marking Place Jonathan Last,2022-01-11 Much archaeological work is concerned with identifying gaps in our knowledge and developing strategies for addressing them we perhaps spend less time thinking about how research should proceed when we already know relatively speaking quite a lot The program of dating causewayed enclosures in southern Britain that was published in 2011 as Gathering Time Oxbow Books gave us a new more precise chronology for many individual sites as well as for enclosures as a whole and as a consequence a far better sense of their significance and place in the story of the British Early Neolithic Arguably causewayed enclosures are now the best understood type of Neolithic monument Yet work continues and in the last few years new discoveries have been made older excavations published and further work undertaken on well known sites Viewing this research within the new framework for these monuments allows us to assess where our understanding of enclosures has got to and where the focus of future research should lie This volume originates from a Neolithic Studies Group meeting held in November 2019 which aimed firstly to showcase and explore the wide range of current work on causewayed enclosures and related sites and secondly to assess what we still want to know about these sites in light of the monumental achievement of Gathering Time The papers collected here comprise reports on recent development led fieldwork academic research and community projects and the volume concludes with a reflection by the authors of Gathering Time
