However most material on the subject has been to this point relegated to single chapters in books and journal articles Now Sound Music and the Moving Thinking Body brings together the diverse topics researchers and practitioners across the sector are exploring and raises issues concerning the collaborative aspects of creating and performing new work Sound Music and the Moving Thinking Body is a result of the Composer Choreographer and Performer Collaboration Conference of Contemporary Music and Dance Movement 2012 hosted by the Institute of Musical Research Senate House University of London and the Department of Music at Goldsmiths University of London Theatre Music and Sound at the RSC Millie Taylor, 2018-10-13 This book discusses an exciting laboratory that has been developing the practice of theatre music composition and sound design since 1961 the Royal Shakespeare Company Musical practices have evolved as composers and musical directors inherited from the past and innovated with new technology different interpretations of single plays in multiple iterations have provided a picture of developing styles genres working practices technologies and contexts actor musicianship has been practiced quietly and without fuss and the role of the sound designer has appeared and transformed the theatrical soundscape This book moves to musical theatre to evidence a continuum between its rich interdisciplinary textures and the musicodramatic world of Shakespeare's plays positioning the RSC as an innovative company that continually expands the creative and collaborative possibilities of the theatre The Sound of Music, 2001 Performed at the Adelaide Festival Theatre 6-28 January 2001 School of Music, Theatre & Dance (University of Michigan) Publications University of Michigan. interdependence and interaction with human performance and drama Suggesting different ways in which sound may be interpreted to create meaning it includes key writings on sound design as well as perspectives from beyond the discipline
