Television and Language Skills Richard Sherrington, 1973 Children and Television Consumption in the Digital Era Barrie Gunter, 2020-11-29 Children and Television Consumption in the Digital Era provides a comprehensive analysis of contemporary research on the developmental impact of children's screen engagement in modern society Barrie Gunter explores how the world of television has evolved to become almost unrecognisable from the broadcast landscapes present over the last years of the 20th century This key text considers how screen based entertainment has become increasingly interactive and how children have become accustomed to creating their own television schedules through streamed services It explores key topics including screen experiences and the manifestation of prosocial and antisocial behaviour advertising and the development of consumerism and the evidence of screen time on a child's health and school performance Gunter insightfully assesses television content that children are exposed to and its impact on cognitive and behavioural development Featuring commentary on the challenges regulators face to keep up with rapidly developing screen technologies and suggestions on how parents can mediate their children's screen behaviour this text is an essential read for researchers and students taking courses in child development family studies broadcasting and communication Handbook of Research on Teaching Literacy Through the Communicative and Visual Arts James Flood, Shirley Brice Heath, Diane Lapp, 2011 The Handbook of Research on Teaching Literacy Through the Communicative and Visual Arts a comprehensive overview of research on this topic extends conceptualizations of literacy to include all of the communicative arts reading writing speaking listening viewing and the visual arts of drama dance film art video and computer technology Television and Child Development Judith Van Evra, 2004-07-21 The book presents a well edited review and integration of current research findings from both communication and psychological literature to provide a comprehensive view of current media use by children and adolescents and its impact on their developing Handbook of Children and the Media Dorothy G. Singer, Jerome L. Singer, 2012 Handbook of Children and the Media brings together the best known scholars from around the world to summarize the current scope of the research in this field Handbook of Child Psychology and Developmental Science, Cognitive Processes , 2015-04-06 The essential reference for human development theory updated and reconceptualized The Handbook of Child Psychology and Developmental Science a four volume reference is the field defining work to which all others are compared First published in 1946 and now in its Seventh Edition the Handbook has long been considered the definitive guide to the field of developmental science Volume 2 Cognitive Processes describes cognitive development as a relational phenomenon that can be studied only as part of a larger whole of the person and context relational system that sustains it In this volume specific domains of cognitive development are contextualized with respect to biological processes and sociocultural contexts Furthermore key themes and issues e.g the importance of symbolic systems and social understanding are threaded across multiple chapters although every chapter is focused on a different domain within cognitive development Thus both within and across chapters the complexity and interconnectivity of cognitive development are well illuminated Learn about the inextricable intertwining of perceptual development motor development emotional development and brain development Understand the complexity of cognitive development without misleading simplification reducing cognitive development to its biological substrates or viewing it as a passive socialization process Discover how each portion of the developmental process contributes to subsequent cognitive development Examine the multiple processes such as categorizing reasoning thinking decision making and judgment that comprise cognition The scholarship within this volume and as well across the four volumes of this edition illustrate that developmental science is in the midst of a very exciting period There is a paradigm shift that involves increasingly greater understanding of how to describe explain and optimize the course of human life for diverse individuals living within diverse contexts This Handbook is the definitive reference for educators policy makers researchers students and practitioners in human development psychology sociology anthropology and neuroscience

Social Media and Minority Languages Elin Haf Gruffydd Jones, Enrique Uribe-Jongbloed, 2013-02-22 As a field in its own right Minority Language Media studies is developing fast The recent technological and social developments that have accelerated media convergence and opened new ways of access and exchange into spaces formerly controlled by media institutions offer new opportunities challenges and dangers to minority languages and especially to their already established media institutions This book includes debates on what convergence and participation actually mean a series of case studies of specific social media developments in minority language as well as comparative studies on how the cultural industries have engaged with the new possibilities brought about by media convergence Finally the book also offers a historical review of the development of Minority Language Media worldwide and evidences the areas in which more extensive research is required

Migrants, Television and Australian Stories Kate Darian-Smith, Sue Turnbull, Sukhmani Khorana, Kyle Harvey, 2025-05-26 This book examines the intertwined histories of television and migration in Australia told from the perspectives of migrants who worked in the screen industry and the many more who watched television Their stories demonstrate how Australia's growing cultural diversity has challenged conventional representations of Australianness on television and how ongoing advocacy has supported the growing inclusivity of multiple narratives and diverse experiences on screen Migrants from many backgrounds were instrumental in the establishment in 1956 of Australian television working behind and in front of the cameras as producers directors writers technicians and actors From early broadcasting to the digital present portrayals of cultural differences have often been shaped by appropriation ethnic stereotyping and racism This has occurred across a range of formats from drama to comedy to news and reality shows Many in the industry have responded with resilience and creative adaptation as they have increasingly taken control of the ways that migrant stories are told and diversity is celebrated The first comprehensive Australian study of migrants and television this book considers the ways multicultural audiences have experienced the small screen over seven decades Drawing on rich oral histories it analyses the memories of television in the work school family life and leisure of migrant communities and their broader engagements with Australian culture Research in the archives of broadcasters and production companies reveals how non Anglo Australian characters were constructed and how such portrayals have shifted This new history takes us to digital screen production and consumption today exploring how Australians of many diasporas engage with the global network of screen content in the twenty first century It is essential reading for media professionals advocates students and those interested in the intersections between media cultural diversity and the nation
