Nancy E. Curry

The Feeling Child:

The Feeling Child Nancy E. Curry, 1986 The Feeling Child Maria Robinson, 2014-02-05 What impact does children's emotional development and well-being have on their capacity to learn? How do you provide learning experiences that meet the developmental needs of every child in your care? The Feeling Child thoughtfully discusses the key principles of children's emotional and behavioural development alongside descriptions of everyday practice. It clearly explains how a child's early experiences influence their particular behaviours towards different people and different situations. Throughout the book, Maria Robinson considers the key characteristics of effective learning and shows how play is one of the key mechanisms that children use in their discovery of themselves and the world around them. These characteristics are then applied to integral aspects of early years practice to help practitioners to support children to come to new understandings in safe yet challenging ways. Understand the ways in which children may approach or withdraw from learning opportunities, reflect on their own teaching methods to encourage children's engagement, motivation and creativity through effective observation and planning, engage with parents and carers to help support children's learning at home whilst maintaining the values of the family, celebrate the uniqueness of each child and provide learning experiences that are appropriate for individuals with particular learning needs, be they physical, emotional or cognitive, to ensure that every child has an equal opportunity to succeed. Emphasising the importance of understanding the theory that underpins children's emotional development, this accessible text shows practitioners how they can use this knowledge to provide learning opportunities that nourish children's thinking and creative skills.

The Feeling Child Philippa Page, Inela Selimovic, Camilla Sutherland, 2018-11-15 The Feeling Child: Affect and Politics in Latin American Literature and Film compiles a series of essays focusing on the figure of the child within the specific context of the affective turn in the study of contemporary sociocultural settings across Latin America. This edited volume looks specifically at the intersection between cultural constructions of childhood and the affective turn within the contemporary sociopolitical landscape of Latin America. The editors and contributors share a common aim in furthering comprehension of the particular intensity of the child's affective presence: spectral, haptic, silent and spectral among others in contemporary Latin American cultural expression. The contributions herein approach this theoretical challenge through an interdisciplinary lens which brings together two burgeoning strands of inquiry. The first is the notion of childhood as a significant and inherently political sociocultural space; the second is the recognition that affect is integral and fundamental to gaining a more complex understanding of the manner in which contemporary social worlds are made. In each case, this affective presence is teased out as a register of society, shedding light on the issues marking out the current sociopolitical landscape, in particular the traces of the recent past in the regions represented. This book brings together established international scholars and young academics focusing on Argentina, Bolivia, Chile, Cuba and Peru.
