The Field Guide To Weeds:

A Practical Field Guide to Weeds of Rice in Asia B. P. Caton, 2010 Weed infestations are a concern for every farmer. Depending on the type of rice production system, farmers across Asia often contend with the same or similar weed species. This group of species is relatively small but of great importance and includes many of the world's worst weeds. In this guide, we have tried to collect practical information about some of the most common weeds of rice in Asia. The guide contains information about the botany, ecology, herbicide resistance, and cultural control of these species in a short text that should be easy to use in the field. In addition, it includes pictures to aid in early and accurate species identification. Field Guide for the Biological Control of Weeds in the Northwest Rachel Winston, Carol Bell Randall, 2017-12-13 This guide focuses on the most problematic weeds in eastern North America for which there are at least some biocontrol agents established and/or available. Multiple photos and descriptions of each weed included in this guide emphasize key identification traits and plant ecology. For each weed included in this guide, all biocontrol agents released or currently found in North America are described individually. Photos highlighting key identification features and damage are included. The release history, current status, and recommended use of each biocontrol agent are described in detail. Recommendations and current impact often vary between the US and Canada; therefore, the information is presented separately. Includes international code of best practices for classical biological control of weeds.
