

HIGHLY QUALIFIED PRAISE FOR

snobbery

"What Joseph Epstein calls snobbery, I should much prefer to call snobbishness, the various manifestations of which he would, you 'ignorant beast,' is over in a second. Still, Mr. Epstein is uncommonly well equipped with a certain rough-hewn intelligence, which renders him a rare one whom, I should say, not everything is lost."

— Henry James

"Indiscreetly delighted by paradox, of which the social world is still too much habituated, Mr. Epstein is, I discover, capable every so often of writing off a sentence that arrests the attention — arrests it, alas, and the two eyes are a loss to readers. His no doubt justified concern over a point of this essentially critical subject is, it goes without saying, thoroughly to be deplored."

— Owen Wilde

"Mr. Epstein quotes me rather frequently in his handsomely arranged little book, whether he understands me is of course another question entirely, but I haven't the space to object upon that score. I have never been to America, and cannot speak to the accuracy of his pronouncements about the particular of the social preoccupations in that foreign country. The book's framework, as it speaks, seems to me sound as far as it goes, though I suppose to say this suggests that it ought to have gone a deal further than that. In those matters, what of us can be said to have gone far enough?"

— Ronald Pearson

"The most serious of the past hundred years — we'll not leave among them — Joseph Epstein's essays are in the lower middle class, this class always eager to get a leg up, if only to be able to place an ill-shod foot on the neck of those below and a knee in the groin of those above."

— Noel Coward
