The New Suburbanization Penny Peace, Thomas M Stanback Jr, 2019-06-26 In this book fourteen large metropolitan economies are examined to show how industrial composition and jobs have changed in central cities and suburbs since 1970 Driven by the shift in emphasis from goods toward services both central cities and suburbs have undergone dramatic changes The analysis shows that many large central cities have experienced wrenching transformations as a result of low growth or declines in employment and population However these cities have continued to be the focal point of economic activity within the metropolis becoming more narrowly specialized in high level services which have yielded higher average earnings These cities are becoming increasingly dependent on commuting suburbanites for their experienced and educated labor force In the suburbs the cumulative effect of continuous growth since World War II has brought a different sort of transformation The composition of employment has broadened with sharp increases in commuting from areas outside the suburbs Major new centers of business consumer and social services have developed giving rise to agglomeration economies and posing new challenges to the social and economic structure of the central city The book also examines employment opportunities in central cities and in suburbs with special emphasis on jobs for blacks women and young workers Analysis reveals the increasing importance of educational qualifications and the role of part time work and focuses on the problems central city blacks face in gaining employment The prospects for city dwellers seeking suburban jobs are often limited by housing and transportation restrictions The book closes with a critical review of suggested policy alternatives that might increase access to employment for these workers Postindustrial Possibilities Fred L. Block, 1990 While it is often acknowledged that we live in a postindustrial age our economic concepts have lagged far behind our postmodern sensibility In this incisive new work the well known sociologist Fred Block sheds obsolete and shopworn economic analysis Employee Training And U.s. Competitiveness Lauren Benton, 2019-03-07 It is by now commonplace to assert that the global economy is entering a new phase and that the paradigm of economic growth that was relevant to the early postwar decades no longer holds sway Major changes such as the explosive growth of services the rise of a handful of highly successful newly industrializing countries and the rapid expansion Service Economies In Europe Wolfgang Ochel, Manfred Wegner, 2019-07-11 This book is about the growth and the role of services in the overall growth of the European economy to develop an adequate framework for assessing the service sector and for making policy recommendations It aims to take stock of the existing knowledge and gaps in producer services Self Employment Robert L. Aronson, 2019-06-07 No detailed description available for Self Employment Getting on Track Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives, 1992 New Democratic Party governments in Canada have always been strongly committed to redistributing wealth and stabilizing the economy but present conditions require that they broaden their perspective They must also find ways of generating wealth if they expect to finance new social programs or protect existing ones As global pressures intensify Bob Rae s Ontario NDP government needs to rethink many of its traditional approaches to public policy and discover new policy instruments to tackle the five principal agendas of social democracy social welfare policy labour market adjustment employment equity industrial strategy and environmental recovery The Changing U.s. Labor Market Eli Ginzberg, 2019-07-09 This book focuses on the aspects of the changing U S labor market including the role that the export of advanced business services from the United States plays in the increasing globalization of the world s economy and the reemergence of national employment policy The Eye of Illusion Eli Ginzberg, 1993-01-01 Eli Ginzberg the dean of applied economics in the United States has studied the changing contours of economic and social structures in American for over sixty years A long time consultant to the federal government including the last nine presidents of the United States his name is indelibly linked with the creation expansion and refinement of employment policy and human resource needs This second volume of memoir reviews in fascinating detail the ideas events and personal encounters of Ginzberg s long and distinguished career and illuminates the principal influences that helped to shape his life and work As in his previous memoir My Brother s Keeper which dealt with the Jewish dimension of his life Ginzberg draws on public and personal history to provide an evocative and intellectually rich account of a tumultuous period in American policy In the first part the author recounts his unusual family background his father was an eminent Judaic scholar and his mother a social activist of decidedly unconventional attitudes and probes the intellectual and emotional roots of his unbreakable ties to New York City and Columbia University The formative inheritance of scholarship and social concern marked Ginzberg s career in the wider world of academia and government The chapters in the second part relate his service at the Pentagon throughout World War II and much of the Cold War period and provide candid and penetrating views of American presidents from Franklin D Roosevelt to Ronald Reagan Later chapters dealing with consultation and study missions in the advanced and underdeveloped world yield valuable insights into the dynamics of economic change Ginzberg s long experience as an analyst of US corporations and foundations informs his discussion of the problems and challenges facing these institutions at the end of the twentieth century A unique blend of autobiographical reflection and clear sighted observation The Eye of Illusion will be of interest to sociologists economists historians and political scientists
