Fifty Years of Medieval Technology and Social Change Steven A. Walton, 2019-08-22 This volume brings together a series of papers at Kalamazoo as well as some contributed papers inspired by the fiftieth anniversary of the publication of Lynn White Jr's Medieval Technology and Social Change 1962 a slim study which catalyzed the study of technology in the Middle Ages in the English speaking world While the initial reviews and decades long fortune of the volume have been varied it is still in print and remains a touchstone of an idea and a time The contributors to the volume therefore both investigate the book itself and its fate and look at new research furthering and inspired by White's work The book opens with an introduction surveying White's career with a bibliography of his work as well as some opening thoughts on the study of medieval technology in the last fifty years Three papers then deal explicitly with the reception and longevity of his work and its impact on medieval studies more generally Then five papers look at new cast studies areas where White's work and approach has had a particular impact namely medieval technology studies and medieval rural ecological studies

War, Technology and the State Warren Chin, 2025-01-21 This book explores the relationship between the state and war within the context of seismic technological change As we experience a fourth industrial revolution technology already exerts a huge impact on the character of war and military strategies in the form of drones and other types of remote warfare However technological developments are not confined to the defence sector and the diffusion of military technology inevitably also affects the wider economy and society This book investigates these possible developments and speculates on their ramifications for the future Through its analysis the book questions what will happen to war and the state and whether we will reach a point where war leads to the unmaking of the state itself War and Technology Alex
