Cardinals Tania Ionin,Ora Matushansky,2018-12-11 An argument that complex cardinals are not extra linguistic but built using standard syntax and standard principles of semantic composition In Cardinals Tania Ionin and Ora Matushansky offer a semantic and syntactic analysis of nominal expressions containing complex cardinals for example two hundred and thirty five books They show that complex cardinals are not an extra linguistic phenomenon as is often assumed but built using standard syntax and standard principles of semantic composition Complex cardinals can tell us as much about syntactic structure and semantic composition as other linguistic expressions Ionin and Matushansky show that their analysis accounts for the internal composition of cardinal containing constructions cross linguistically providing examples from more than fifteen languages They demonstrate that their proposal is compatible with a variety of related phenomena including modified numerals measure nouns and fractions Ionin and Matushansky show that a semantic or syntactic account that captures the behavior of a simplex cardinal such as five does not automatically transfer to a complex cardinal such as five thousand and forty six and propose a compositional analysis of complex cardinals They consider the lexical categories of simplex cardinals and their role in the construction of complex cardinals examine in detail the numeral systems of selected languages including Slavic and Semitic languages discuss linguistic constructions that contain cardinals address extra linguistic conventions on the construction of complex cardinals and drawing on data from Modern Hebrew Basque Russian and Dutch show that modified numerals and partitives are compatible with their analysis

Chamberlain's Young Scholar's New English Dictionary Eliza Chamberlain, 1846 Beeton's Encyclopædia of universal information Samuel Orchart Beeton, 1888 A Grammar of Mongsen Ao A.R. Coupe, 2008-08-27 A Grammar of Mongsen Ao the result of the author's fieldwork over a ten year period presents the first comprehensive grammatical description of a language spoken in Nagaland north east India The languages of this region remain under documented for a number of historical reasons During the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries the widespread cultural practice of head hunting discouraged outsiders from entering the Naga Hills Shortly after Indian independence in 1947 an armed rebellion by Naga separatists and a government policy of restricting access to the troubled area ensured that Nagaland remained a difficult place to conduct research In this context A Grammar of Mongsen Ao offers valuable new insights into the structure of a Tibeto Burman language spoken in a linguistically little known region of the world The grammatical analysis documents all the functional domains of the language and includes four glossed and translated texts the latter being of interest to anthropologists studying folklore Mongsen Ao is a highly agglutinating mostly suffixing language with predominantly dependent marking characteristics Its grammar demonstrates a number of typologically interesting features that are described in detail in the book Among these is an unusual case marking system in which grammatical marking is motivated by semantic and pragmatic factors and a rich verbal morphology that produces elaborate sequences of agglutinative suffixes Grammaticalisation processes are also discussed where relevant thereby extending the appeal of the book to linguists with interests in grammaticalisation theory This book will be of value to any linguist seeking to clarify genetic relationships within the Tibeto Burman family and it will serve more broadly as a reference grammar for typologists interested in the typological features of a Tibeto Burman language of north east India
