Science on American Television Marcel Chotkowski, 2024-05-31 As television emerged as a major cultural and economic force many imagined that the medium would enhance civic education for topics like science And indeed television soon offered a breathtaking banquet of scientific images and ideas both factual and fictional Mr Wizard performed experiments with milk bottles Viewers watched live coverage of solar eclipses and atomic bomb blasts Television cameras followed astronauts to the moon Carl Sagan through the Cosmos and Jane Goodall into the jungle Via electrons and embryos blood testing and blasting caps fictional Frankensteins and chatty Nobel laureates television opened windows onto the world of science But what promised to be a wonderful way of presenting science to huge audiences turned out to be a disappointment argues historian Marcel Chotkowski LaFollette in Science on American Television LaFollette narrates the history of science on television from the 1940s to the turn of the twenty first century to demonstrate how disagreements between scientists and television executives inhibited the medium s potential to engage in meaningful science education In addition to examining the content of shows she also explores audience and advertiser responses the role of news in engaging the public in science and the making of scientific celebrities Lively and provocative Science on American Television establishes a new approach to grappling with the popularization of science in the television age when the medium s ubiquity and influence shaped how science was presented and the scientific community had increasingly less control over what appeared on the air

Nuclear Power in Britain and Germany: Culture, Emotions, and Rationality Christian Götter, 2025-07-28 Split into two volumes volume 1 is a cultural history of technology that provides new insights into the international history of nuclear energy by examining the perspectives of six nuclear power plants host communities in Britain and Germany from the 1950s to the late 1980s Based upon a continuous qualitative analysis of the public debates in these communities this book demonstrates that the societal conflicts about atomic power were never confined to the risks of one exceptional energy technology Instead they were shaped by larger societal issues which they in turn heavily influenced Therefore the local discourses about nuclear energy provide an insight into transformations the British and German societies underwent during the Cold War The book will be of value for scholars and students interested in the history of technology environmental political and contemporary history as well as science and technology studies It will be of interest to researchers and members of the public interested in the local history of Biblis Hinkley Point Lingen Oldbury on Severn Stade and Torness as well as the wider public interested in the ongoing debates about nuclear power as a source of energy and a potential answer to the challenges of climate change
