Martial Arts and the Body Politic in Meiji Japan Denis Gainty, 2013-08-22 In 1895 the newly formed Greater Japan Martial Virtue Association Dainippon Butokukai held its first annual Martial Virtue Festival butokusai in the ancient capital of Kyoto The Festival marked the arrival of a new iteration of modern Japan as the Butokukai's efforts to define and popularise Japanese martial arts became an important medium through which the bodies of millions of Japanese citizens would experience draw on and even shape the Japanese nation and state This book shows how the notion and practice of Japanese martial arts in the late Meiji period brought Japanese bodies Japanese nationalisms and the Japanese state into sustained contact and dynamic engagement with one another Using a range of disciplinary approaches Denis Gainty shows how the metaphor of a national body and the cultural and historical meanings of martial arts were celebrated and appropriated by modern Japanese at all levels of society allowing them to participate powerfully in shaping the modern Japanese nation and state While recent works have cast modern Japanese and their bodies as subject to state domination and elite control this book argues that having a body being a body and through that body experiencing and shaping social political and even cosmic realities is an important and underexamined aspect of the late Meiji period Martial Arts and the Body Politic in Meiji Japan is an important contribution to debates in Japanese and Asian social sciences theories of the body and its role in modern historiography and related questions of power and agency by suggesting a new and dramatic role for human bodies in the shaping of modern states and societies As such it will be valuable to students and scholars of Japanese studies Japanese history modern nations and nationalisms and sport and leisure studies as well as those interested in the body more broadly
