exchange with a person entirely named Angel. Jemila exchanges views and perspectives on life, love, and the universe with this Angel. The dialogue lasts throughout the book. Angel speaks from the very first page and the very last and everywhere in between. Whoever this Angel ends up being, it is very important in the scheme of the novel. The story, the events of the novel, are not related in the straightforward manner. Events, what little there are, are explained through the consciousness of the protagonist and almost never described physically, as the mental and emotional world of Jemila's own mind. It is very much an interior narrative of Jemila's own mind and soul, a logbook diary of the conscious mind of the protagonist. With a flair for poetry and inspirational stories, this novel is laced with poetic interludes and epigraphs. It flows like a river, in fact, a river of consciousness. Through the novel, there is a lot of interior strength of character. I paint portraits of strong people who have a sense of interior self-worth and self-esteem, who seek to make the world over into images of themselves. Jemila may not be a strong person in the usual sense, but she tends to make the world over in her image. The world is the contents of her mind, and vice versa. Her mind is the outside world, in a sense. It is mostly about Jemila remembering events in the lives of a family that lead to the central flaw or strength of character's and understanding how a character will act in the story. Through the dialogue with Angel, Jemila finds true strength from Angel's words, and from that, she decides that we are most alike in our feelings and least alike in our thinking. Angel's visit to Jemila through dream brings about a new beginning to Jemila's stream of thought, memory, feelings, emotions, fears, and pains, and replaces it all with a new chance to live.

Great American Prose Poems David Lehman, 2008-06-18. A prose poem is a poem written in prose rather than verse. But what does that really mean? Is it an indefinable hybrid?
