

The Leukemic Cell

Lauren Sompayrac

The Leukemic Cell:

The Leukemic Cell Daniel Catovsky,1991 This new edition includes two new chapters each on cell markers and DNA analysis Also the role of ultrastructural morphology in immunocytochemistry is examined in greater detail than before and there is a new chapter on lymphoid malignancies The emphasis is on practical approach The Leukemia Cell Arnold D. Rubin,Samuel Waxman,1979 The Leukemic Child Mikie Sherman,1976 Dynamic Morphology of Leukemia Cells H. Felix,G. Haemmerli,P. Sträuli,2012-12-06 Dynamic Morphology is the attempt to correlate surface architecture and shape of fixed cells as visualized by scanning electron microscopy SEM with the behavior of living cells recorded by microcinematography MCM If SEM and MCM are used concurrently for the analysis of cell populations a dynamic interpretation of SEM photographs is only valid if the experimental conditions are identical for the two techniques This is achieved by allowing the cells to settle on a glass surface where they remain long enough to perform their various activities under conditions identical for both techniques for technical details see Methodology The analysis of a population necessitates the study of a large number of cells This prerequisite is met by operating the scanning electron microscope at low levels of magnification and by using culture chambers for cinematography It can be argued that the examination of attached cells excludes a complete SEM survey of a population as cells not adhering from the outset or becoming detached during the different preparatory steps are lost For this cinematography proved to be a reliable control All cell types recognized in time lapse films were also seen in scanning electron SE micrographs Another and more general objection to a dynamic interpretation concerns the artificiality of cellular behavior on glass This is true but does not invalidate comparative studies making use of this substrate The Leukemias: Etiology, Pathophysiology, and Treatment John W. Rebuck, Frank H. Bethell, Raymond W. Monto, 2013-10-22 The Leukemias Etiology Pathophysiology and Treatment documents the proceedings of an International Symposium on The Leukemias Etiology and Pathophysiology held at Henry Ford Hospital Detroit Michigan 8 10 March 1956 This volume gives the present complex position of leukemic etiology and pathophysiologic disturbance a much needed knowledge of detailed leukocytic functions and comprehensive thought on the therapy of the leukemias It also establishes a basis of comparison with the earlier works of Downey and Forkner in this field in the late thirties and thus makes it possible to see with some clarity the extent of progress made The volume contains 39 papers organized into nine parts The papers in Part I focus on the leukemic cell its structure and antigenicity Part II presents studies on genetic and environmental factors in the transmission of leukemia Part III examines the radiation biology of leukocytes Part IV focuses on the leukemias and the malignant lymphomas while Part V deals with leukocytic physiology Part VI covers the metabolism of amino and nucleic acids in the leukemias Part VII takes up further biochemical considerations in the leukemias Part VIII contains papers that examine nucleic acids as the target for chemotherapy Part IX presents a round table discussion on therapy Unclassifiable Leukemias M. Bessis,G. Brecher,2012-12-06 Jean BERNARD I should like to begin with an assumption and a paradox The assumption is that leukemia is a disease of a stem cell characterized by pathologic alterations of that cell and its progeny All present research and discussions are centered around the leukemic cell So is this symposium which would not take place except for our primary interest in the leukemic cell This does not preclude of course consideration of other definitions and other approaches to the problem By definition then the leukemic cells are abnormal cells and their metabolism and functions are presumed to be abnormal Yet the classification of the different types of leukemias is based upon the characteristics of normal cells We talk of lymphoblasts and myeloblasts as predominant cell types in leukemia This leads to a double paradox In the first place it is clearly illogical to classify abnormal cells by their resemblance to normal cells since their very abnormality consists in not being normal Yet as a second paradox the classification has had the happy consequence of aiding us in the treatment and prognosis of leukemia for the past 25 years A more detailed analysis shows that the consequence of this paradox are complex while there exists a useful correlation between cellular types treatment and prognosis numerous problems and difficulties persist The most serious of them concerns the unclassified leukemias which are the reason for this reunion

Adult in Leukemias 1 Clara D. Bloomfield, 2012-12-06

Where do you begin to look for a recent authoritative article on the diagnosis or management of a particular malignancy The few general oncology textbooks are generally out of date Single papers in specialized journals are informative but seldom comprehensive these are more often preliminary reports on a very limited number of patients Certain general journals frequently publish good in-depth reviews of cancer topics and published symposium lectures are often the best overviews available Unfortunately these reviews and supplements appear sporadically and the reader can never be sure when a topic of special interest will be covered Cancer Treatment and Research is a series of authoritative volumes which aim to meet this need It is an attempt to establish a critical mass of oncology literature covering virtually all oncology topics revised frequently to keep the coverage up to date easily available on a single library shelf or by a single personal subscription We have approached the problem in the following fashion First by dividing the oncology literature into specific subdivisions such as lung cancer genitourinary cancer pediatric oncology etc Second by asking eminent authorities in each of these areas to edit a volume on the specific topic on an annual or biannual basis Each topic and tumor type is covered in a volume appearing frequently and predictably discussing current diagnosis staging markers all forms of treatment modalities basic biology and more

How Cancer Works Lauren Sompayrac, 2004 Lauren Sompayrac explains the basics of cancer what it is what it does and what is being done to try to cure it

Hematopoiesis Leonard I. Zon, 2001-04-12 Hematopoiesis or the process of blood formation has been extensively studied at both basic and clinical levels Human diseases such as thalassemia immunodeficiency and leukemia represent defects in this process Approaches to treat these disorders have required a basic understanding of the biology of blood cells For instance hematopoietic stem cell replacement or bone marrow transplantation has been used to ameliorate disease This volume focuses on hematopoiesis at a cellular and molecular level and establishes the basis for clinical manipulation of hematopoietic cells for therapeutic benefit In Part I the cellular characteristics of progenitors and stem cells are explored Emphasis is placed on purification of stem cells and both in vitro and in vivo assays The regulation of normal and leukemic stem cells is illustrated An excellent discussion of potential use of these cells for gene therapy concludes this section Hematopoiesis is easily studied during embryogenesis Part II develops the concept of the waves of hematopoiesis during development Comparative hematology is making a major comeback as a field in the 1990 s One hope is that general principles of hematopoiesis will be established by studying many models and systems Part III delves into critical factors that regulate hematopoiesis including both intracellular and extracellular signals Part IV and V describe lineage programs for myeloid and lymphoid lineages These chapters are meant to be illustrative of the different cell fates but are not exhaustive Part VI examines the genetics of hematopoiesis particularly in animal models The hematopoietic system is in constant contact with stromal cells and endothelial cells during development and in the adult Evidence suggests that endothelial cells and blood cells may arise from a common progenitor the hemangioblast Part VII and VIII discuss the stromal and endothelial cells with the emphasis on their interaction with hematopoietic cells NIH Publication ,1983
