The Life of a Psychologist Fritz Heider, 1983

History of Psychology in Autobiography Leendert P. Mos, 2009-06-12

Since the 17th century autobiography has an honorable place in the study of history. In 1930 the preeminent historian of psychology Edwin Boring writes that a science separated from its history lacks direction and promises a future of uncertain importance. To understand what psychology is and what it is becoming the autobiographies of famous psychologists is history at its best. Here we find model inquirers of the science who offer a personalized account of themselves and their vocation in the context of the history of the science. What is characteristic of many of those who have contributed to an alternate vision of psychological science is that they never considered themselves or were considered by others as belonging to the mainstream of the discipline. In considering an alternative history of psychology in autobiography the editor invited contributors whose research and writings have pushed the discipline in other directions, pushed its limits, and whose scholarship finds its philosophical framework outside the discipline altogether. If these contributors may not be model inquirers, their scholarship is very much a matter of consequence for those who wish to understand psychology. Among the outliers included here are those who devoted themselves to the writing of psychology, examining its history, theories, research, and professional practices, and who enthusiastically embraced over the course of their lives the discipline as a human science. Their influence has been subtle, as has been their appeal to many students who, with affection for the discipline, find its promise in a discerning self-awareness and a critical understanding of others and their worlds. This volume is not simply a collection of personal chronologies which might inspire or lend appreciation to a younger generation. Our contributors write from their personal and professional experience, of course, but they write of their thinking and understanding of the psyche as an aspect of human life, of psychology as an academic form of human sciences inquiry, and so bring to bear their scientific and philosophical imagination to their personal challenges in their chosen vocation as psychologists. Our contributors cover a broad swath of the second half of the 20th century, the century of psychology. Nurturing the discipline from within, various philosophical, social, political, and cultural roots, their autobiographies exemplify marginality, if not alienation from the mainstream, even as their professional and personal lives give expression to engaged scholarship, commitment to vocation, and straightforwardly and reflectively, a love of the heart. From Germany, Carl Graumann; from France, Erika Apfelbaum; from Canada, David Bakan and Kurt Danziger; and from the United States, Amedeo Giorgi, Robert Rieber, and Joseph Rychlak, relate their lives to the larger contexts of our times. Their personal stories are an integral part of the historiography of our discipline. Indeed, a contribution to the historiography of our discipline is constituted in their autobiographical self-presentations; for their writings attest as much to their lives as model inquirers as they do to the possibility of psychology as a human science.

A History of Psychology in Autobiography Gardner Lindzey, William McKinley Runyan, 2007. This book is an attempt to examine the history of psychology through autobiographies of some of the science's early theorists. The author of a recent history of psychology found that it was impossible to get important facts concerning the scientific development of certain individuals except from those individuals themselves Since a science separated from its history lacks direction and promises a future of uncertain importance it is a matter of consequence to those who wish to understand psychology for those individuals who have greatly influenced contemporary psychology to put into print as much of their personal histories as bears on their professional careers PsycINFO Database Record c 2006 APA all rights reserved A History of Modern Psychology Per

Saugstad,2018-11-08 This textbook presents an engaging and global history of psychological science from the birth of the field to the present A History of Modern Psychology David C. Ludden, Jr.,David Ludden,2019-12-11 Ludden s text is a breath of fresh air enabling students of all backgrounds to see themselves reflected in well researched and humanized portrayals of the pioneers of the field working within the context from which psychological science has emerged Cynthia A Edwards Meredith College A History of Modern Psychology The Quest for a Science of the Mind presents a history of psychology up to the turn of the 21st century Author David C Ludden Jr uses a topical approach to discuss key thinkers and breakthroughs within the context of various schools of thought allowing students to see how philosophers researchers and academics influenced one another to create the rich and diverse landscape of modern psychology Through detailed timelines and Looking Back and Looking Ahead sections the book provides connections between movements and gives students a deeper appreciation for the transference of knowledge that has shaped the field Included with this title The password protected Instructor Resource Site formally known as SAGE Edge offers access to all text specific resources including a test bank and editable chapter specific PowerPoint slides Journeys in Social Psychology Robert Levine,Aroldo

Rodrigues,Lynnette Zelezny,2013-10-28 This volume consists of personal narrative accounts of the career journeys of some of the world s most eminent social psychologists Each contributing psychologist is an esteemed scholar an excellent writer and has a story to tell Together the contributions cover a time range from Morton Deutsch to today and touch upon virtually every important movement and person in the history of academic social psychology This book provides a fascinating insight into the development of outstanding academic careers and will be a source of inspiration to seasoned researchers and beginning students alike in the fields of social psychology history of psychology and beyond Autobiography and the Psychological Study of Religious Lives ,2008-01-01 This volume positions itself on the cutting edge of two fields in psychology that enjoy rapidly increasing attention both the study of human lives and some core domains of such lives as religion and spirituality are high on the agenda of current research and teaching Biographies and autobiographies are being approached in new ways and have become central to the study of human lives as an object of research and a preferred method for obtaining unique data about subjective human experiences Ever since the beginning of the psychology of religion autobiographies have also been pointed out as an important source of information about psychic processes involved in religiosity In this volume a number of leading theoreticians and researchers from Europe and the USA try to bring them back to this field by drawing on new insights and latest developments in psychological theory Positivism in Psychology

Charles W. Tolman, 2012-12-06 Positivism needs further scrutiny In recent years there has been little consensus about the nature of positivism or about the precise forms its influence has taken on psychological theory One symptom of this lack of clarity has been that ostensibly anti positivist psychological theorizing is frequently found reproducing one or more distinctively positivist assumptions The contributors to this volume believe that while virtually every theoretically engaged psychologist today openly rejects positivism in both its 19th century and 20th century forms it is indispensable to look at positivism from all sides and to appraise its role and importance in order to make possible the further development of psychological theory Six Community Psychologists Tell Their Stories James G Kelly, Anna Song, 2014-07-16 Six

Community Psychologists Tell Their Stories History Contexts and Narrative presents the unique opportunity to examine how culture and social norms have combined with chance coincidence and serendipity to form the professional identities of men and women who were among the first generation trained to work in the field of community psychology The book's contributors, disciples of those who founded the sub field, provide insights into the factors: social status, family history, education, social environment, cultural events, important ideas that furthered their professional development in an emerging field Their stories still works in progress go far beyond facts, figures, dates and details to document what they've done with their lives and why Six esteemed community psychologists: three men who began their careers as the field was established in the mid 1960s and three women who took part in the increased opportunities available in the 1970s recall how important events and social movements affected them as they fulfilled their personal and professional goals They discuss the effects of family values and styles, class, ethnic status, gender, racism, anti-Semitism, the power of social settings, supportive education and work settings and the impact of post World War II government programs on their education including the G I Bill and the establishment of United States Public Health Service fellowships Their stories touch on many common themes including social marginality and sex discrimination, making personal discoveries in response to educational experiences, the significance of fate and the experience of gaining a new or renewed sense of self through meaningful events, occasions and people These Six Community Psychologists Tell Their Stories Dr Jean Ann Linney, University of South Carolina whose experiences involve a combination of idealism, supportive contexts and good fortune Dr Julian Rappaport, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign who views himself as an insider-outsider whose personal and professional identity crosses traditional boundaries Dr N Dickon Reppucci, University of Virginia who became a community psychologist by accident an outgrowth of his involvement with social protest in the 1960s Dr Marybeth Shinn, New York University whose story reflects her interest in the social contexts of neighborhoods and community settings Dr Edison J Trickett, University of Illinois at Chicago who writes of the life experiences that have influenced both his work and his longtime involvement in folk music Dr Rhona S Weinstein, University of California at Berkeley whose work in the dynamics of self-fulfilling prophecies in educational settings developed early in her career Insightful commentary on their recollections is provided by two distinguished scholars Henrika Kuklick Science Historian at the University of Pennsylvania and Dan McAdams Professor of Psychology at Northwestern University Six Community Psychologists Tell Their Stories History Contexts and Narrative is a unique resource for community psychologists autobiographical researchers and anyone interested in the history of psychology From Darwin to Behaviourism Robert Boakes,1984-04-19 This volume surveys the way that understanding of the minds of animals and ideas about the relationship between animal and human behaviour developed from around 1870 to 1930 In describing the research and theories which contributed to these developments this book looks at the people who undertook such studies and the reasons why they did so Its main purpose is to examine the different ways in which the outcome of this work affected their ideas about the human mind and exerted such a formative influence on psychology in general This book will be used by first and second year undergraduates studying psychology and will also appeal to students of the history of science and philosophy In addition the lucid non technical style of this book will provide an excellent introduction to the general reader who would like to know more about this interesting subject
