Research on Small Populations National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine,Health and Medicine Division,Board on Health Care Services,Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education,Committee on National Statistics,2018-07-02 The increasing diversity of population of the United States presents many challenges to conducting health research that is representative and informative Dispersion and accessibility issues can increase logistical costs populations for which it is difficult to obtain adequate sample size are also likely to be expensive to study Hence even if it is technically feasible to study a small population it may not be easy to obtain the funding to do so In order to address the issues associated with improving health research of small populations the National Academies of Sciences Engineering and Medicine convened a workshop in January 2018 Participants considered ways of addressing the challenges of conducting epidemiological studies or intervention research with small population groups including alternative study designs innovative methodologies for data collection and innovative statistical techniques for analysis

Developing and Evaluating Methods for Using American Community Survey Data to Support the School Meals Programs National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on National Statistics, Panel on Estimating Children Eligible for School Nutrition Programs Using the American Community Survey, 2010-10-10 The National School Lunch Program and the School Breakfast Program administered by the Food and Nutrition Service of the U S Department of Agriculture USDA are key components of the nation's food security safety net providing free or low cost meals to millions of school age children each day Under the most commonly adopted provisions USDA reimburses districts for meals served on the basis of data collected in a base year during which applications are taken After 3 or 4 years applications must be taken again to establish new base year data unless the district provides evidence that local conditions have not changed A special provision that does not require applications to be taken every few years would reduce burden be more attractive to school districts and potentially increase student participation by expanding access to free meals To support the development of such a provision the Food and Nutrition Service asked the National Academies to study the technical and operational issues that arise in using data from the American Community Survey ACS a new continuous survey replacing the long form survey of the decennial census to obtain estimates of students who are eligible for free and reduced price meals for schools and school districts Such estimates would be used to develop claiming percentages that if sufficiently accurate would determine federal reimbursements to districts for the schools that provide free meals to all students under a new special provision that eliminates the base year requirements of current provisions

Methods to Foster Transparency and Reproducibility of Federal Statistics National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on National Statistics, 2019-03-01 In 2014 the National Science Foundation NSF provided support to the National Academies of Sciences Engineering and Medicine for a series of Forums on Open Science in response to a government wide directive to support increased public access to the results of research funded by the federal government However the breadth of the work resulting from the series precluded a focus on any specific topic or discussion about how to improve public access Thus the main goal of the Workshop on Transparency and Reproducibility in Federal Statistics was to develop some understanding of what principles and practices are or would be supportive of making federal statistics more understandable and reviewable both by agency staff and the public This publication summarizes the presentations and discussions from the workshop

Surveying Victims National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on Law and Justice, Committee on National Statistics, Panel to Review the Programs of the Bureau of Justice Statistics,2008-06-19 It is easy to underestimate how little was known about crimes and victims before the findings of the National Crime Victimization Survey NCVS became common wisdom In the late 1960s knowledge of crimes and their victims came largely from reports filed by local police agencies as part of the Federal Bureau of Investigation s FBI Uniform Crime Reporting UCR system as well as from studies of the files held by individual police departments Criminologists understood that there existed a dark figure of crime consisting of events not reported to the police However over the course of the last decade the effectiveness of the NCVS has been undermined by the demands of conducting an increasingly expensive survey in an effectively flat line budgetary environment Surveying Victims Options for Conducting the National Crime Victimization Survey reviews the programs of the Bureau of Justice Statistics BJS Specifically it explores alternative options for conducting the NCVS which is the largest BJS program This book describes various design possibilities and their implications relative to three basic goals flexibility in terms of both content and analysis utility for gathering information on crimes that are not well reported to police and small domain estimation including providing information on states or localities This book finds that as currently configured and funded the NCVS is not achieving and cannot achieve BJS s mandated goal to collect and analyze data that will serve as a continuous indication of the incidence and attributes of crime Accordingly Surveying Victims recommends that BJS be afforded the budgetary resources necessary to generate accurate measure of victimization

Analyzing Information on Women-Owned Small Businesses in Federal Contracting National Research Council,Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education,Committee on National Statistics,Steering Committee for the Workshop on Women-Owned Small Businesses in Federal Contracting,2005-03-28 It has been clear for at least 50 years the disadvantages that small businesses face in competing for U S government contracts The Small Business Act of 1953 created the Small Business Administration SBA an independent agency in the executive branch that counsels and assists specific types of small businesses including firms owned by minorities and other socially and economically disadvantaged individuals and firms owned by women Women owned small businesses however are underrepresented or substantially underrepresented in some industries In 2002 the SBA Office of Federal Contract Assistance for Women Business Owners CAWBO organized a draft study containing a preliminary set of approximations of the representation of women owned small businesses in federal prime contracts over 25 000 by industry Because of the past legal challenges to race and gender conscious contracting programs at the federal and local levels the SBA asked the Committee on National Statistics of the National Academies to conduct an independent review of relevant data and estimation methods prior to finalizing the CAWBO study The Steering Committee on Women Owned Small Businesses in Federal Contracting was created and charged with holding a workshop to discuss topics including the accuracy of data and methods to estimate the use of women owned small businesses in federal contracting and the definition of underrepresentation and substantial underrepresentation in designating industries for which preferential contracting programs might be warranted Analyzing

Information on Women Owned Small Businesses in Federal Contracting presents the committee's report as well as the recommendations that committees have made
