Lynne Dixon, Alison Hales

The History Of Britain An Aerial View:

The History of Britain Christopher Stanley, 1984 Britain's history has made a clear imprint on the landscape and aerial photography demonstrated this in a particularly vivid way This collection contains a wide variety of 150 private British aerial photographs some specially taken for the book brought together to represent Britain from prehistoric times to the 1980s

Britain's Changing Environment from the Air Tim Bayliss-Smith, Susan E. Owens, 1990-11-15 Commercial pressures and mechanization have rendered almost unrecognizable the natural and man made landscapes of Britain as they existed before World War I How this happened and how we can best conserve what is left is charted using the perspective of aerial photography in this book

Zoomscape Mitchell Schwarzer, 2004-03 Although a few among us are intrepid architectural tourists visiting buildings and landscapes our cameras at the ready most of us experience architecture through the windshield of a moving vehicle the architectural experience reduced to a blurry and momentary drive by And the rest of our architectural tourism is through the images of cameras movies and television programs that is through the lens of another's eye Architectural historian Mitchell Schwarzer calls this new mediated architectural experience the zoomscape In this thought provoking book he argues that the perception of architecture has been fundamentally altered by the technologies of transportation and the camera we now look at buildings neighborhoods cities and even entire continents as we ride in trains cars and planes and or as we view photographs movies and television Zoomscape shows how we now perceive buildings and places at high speeds across great distances through edited and multiple reproductions Nowadays our views of the architectural landscape are modulated by the accelerator pedal and the remote control by studio production techniques and airplane flight paths Using examples from high art and popular culture from the novels of Don DeLillo to the opening credits of The Sopranos Mitchell Schwarzer shows that the zoomscape has brought about unprecedented and often marvelous new ways of perceiving the built environment

From Sea Charts to Satellite Images David Buisseret, 1990-06-22 The authors write authoritatively and crisply How to use maps in teaching is spelled out carefully but the authors also manage to sketch in the background of American mapping so the book is both a manual and a history Commentaries are sprinkled with stimulating new ideas for instance on how to use bird's eye views and country atlases in the classroom and there are didactic discussions on maps showing the walking city and the impact of the street car An extraordinarily wide range of maps is depicted which makes for good browsing pondering and close study This is a very good highly attractive and worthwhile book it will have great impact on the use of old and new maps in teaching As well this is a tantalizing survey of mapping the United States and will whet the appetites of students and encourage them to learn more about maps and their origins John Warkentin Cartographica

A History of Britain's Hospitals G. Barry Carruthers, Lesley A. Carruthers, 2005 Hospital superbugs are nothing new For centuries patients were more likely to die from an infection picked up in hospital than from their original disease Indeed hospitals used to be called gateways of death Massaging league tables by concentrating on minor operations

Not a recent innovation either At one time hospitals refused to admit patients likely to die and never attempted major surgery Barry and Lesley Carruthers provide many such startling parallels in their fascinating look at the development of Britain's hospitals from a Roman field hospital to the keyhole surgery of today There are also wonderful stories of individual dedication such as the GP who found a girl dying in a London street and took her to three hospitals all of which refused to admit her as she did not have the necessary governor's letter so he founded what become known as the Free Hospital Divided into chapters on such vital topics as mental hospitals nursing and the National Health Service this history celebrates not only medical and logistical advances but also the individual contributions of the men and women who worked to provide an accessible hospital service for all

BOOK JACKET Bringing History Alive through Local People and Places Lynne Dixon, Alison Hales, 2013-12-04 A much needed and delightful book It shows how history can be taught with the meaningful experiences of each child at its centre making connections between the child the locality and community the national and global past and concepts of time Throughout the authors empower teachers to adopt their philosophy by showing them how to plan select resources and strategies and reflect on ideas and case studies Hilary Cooper Emeritus professor of history and pedagogy The University of Cumbria UK Bringing History Alive through Local People and Places puts the local environment and community at the heart of history showing how it can be used as the context for successful history teaching across the primary age range It considers how to develop children's concepts and skills through local history how to link local national and global aspects of history and helps you develop your own historical knowledge understanding and confidence in teaching the subject Practical topics explored include Investigating children's cultural and geographical roots through fieldwork Finding and visiting local museums archives and heritage sights Choosing and using resources Using significant people events and buildings to link with national history Environmental education and sustainable development through local history Understanding the links between history and everyday life Planning and assessing history Based on the latest research and practice in the field Bringing History Alive through Local People and Places offers an exciting template of creative ideas and activities to show teachers how they can make history relevant to all children

Discovering and Using Historical Geographic Resources on the Web Eva H. Dodsworth, L. W. Laliberté, 2014-06-12 Historical geographic material like maps plans and air photos although collected and persevered by libraries archives and other heritage organizations are often hidden from the general public They can be difficult to find access and use Fortunately these caches of cartographic gems have been recognized and valued for their significant contribution to research As a result many of these collections have been recently digitized and made available to the public directly and freely online Acting as a comprehensive guide to online historical cartographic and other visual resources Discovering and Using Historical Geographic Resources on the Web provides library and archival staff and their users with information on how to locate interpret understand and use these resources Even for experts this book can serve as a handy reference that summarizes the different types of maps published providing comprehensive lists of where to access them This book is written for all library staff members who answer reference questions and provide library instruction and for those who are interested in digitizing their own cartographic collections It will also attract history buffs and scholars in environmental studies history earth sciences anthropology and more The Geographical Magazine Michael Huxley,1986 Vols for 19 include a separate section called GM news and reviews

Writing the Map of Anglo-Saxon England Nicholas Howe,2008-01-01 Eminent Anglo Saxonist Nicholas Howe explores how the English in the centuries before the Norman Conquest located themselves both literally and imaginatively in the world His elegantly written study focuses on Anglo Saxon representations of place as revealed in a wide variety of texts in Latin and Old English as well as in diagrams of holy sites and a single map of the known world found in British Library Cotton Tiberius B v The scholar s investigations are supplemented and aided by insights gleaned from his many trips to physical sites The Anglo Saxons possessed a remarkable body of geographical knowledge in written rather than cartographic form Howe demonstrates To understand fully their cultural geography he considers Anglo Saxon writings about the places they actually inhabited and those they imagined He finds in Anglo Saxon geographic images a persistent sense of being far from the center of the world and he discusses how these migratory peoples narrowed that distance and developed ways to define themselves The Asterisk Albert George Black,1984
