by tragedy In lyrical yet wrenching prose Matthew Pratt Guterl one of the children narrates a family saga of astonishing originality in which even the best intentions would prove woefully inadequate He takes us inside the clapboard house where Bob and Sheryl raised their makeshift brood in a nation riven then as now by virulent racism and xenophobia Chronicling both the humor and pathos of this experiment he opens a door to our dreams of what the idea of family might make possible In the tradition of James McBride s The Color of Water Skinfolk exposes the joys and constraints of love blood and belonging and the persistent river of racial violence in America past and present Folktales and Fairy Tales Anne E. Jones, Jennifer Schacker, 2012-10-19 Marvelous Transformations is an anthology of tales and original critical essays that moves beyond canonized classics and old paradigms documenting the points of historical connection between literary tales and field based collections This innovative anthology reflects current interdisciplinary scholarship on oral traditions and the cultural history of the print fairy tale In addition to the tales original critical essays newly written for this volume introduce readers to differing perspectives on key ideas in the field Unruly Penelopes and the Ghosts Eva Darias-Beautell, 2012-08-06 This collection of essays studies the cultural and literary contexts of narrative texts produced in English Canada over the last forty years It takes as its starting point the nationalist movement of the 1960s and 70s when the supposed absence or weakness of a national sense became the touchstone for official discourses on the cultural identity of the country That type of metaphor provided the nation with the distinctive elements it was looking for and contributed to the creation of a sense of tradition that has survived to the present In the decades following the 1970s however critics artists and writers have repeatedly questioned such a model of national identity still fragile and in need of articulation by reading the nation from alternative perspectives such as multiculturalism environmentalism neo regionalism feminism or postcolonialism These contributors suggest that the artistic and cultural flowering Canada is experiencing at the beginning of the twenty first century is to a great extent based on the dismantlement of the images constructed to represent the nation only forty years ago Through their readings of representative primary texts their contextual analysis and their selected methodological tools the authors offer a tapestry of alternative approaches to that process of dismantlement Together they read as an unruly Penelopiad their unravelling readings self consciously interrogating Canada's lack of ghosts

Queer Universes Wendy Gay Pearson, Veronica Hollinger, Joan Gordon, 2008-03-01 Contestations over the meaning and practice of sexuality have become increasingly central to cultural self definition and critical debates over issues of identity citizenship and the definition of humanity itself In an era when a religious authority can declare lesbians antihuman while some nations legalise same sex marriage and are becoming increasingly tolerant of a variety of non normative sexualities it is hardly surprising that science fiction in turn takes up the task of imagining a diverse range of queer and not so queer futures The essays in Queer Universes investigate both contemporary and historical practices of representing sexualities and genders in science fiction literature Queer Universes opens with Wendy Pearson's award winning essay on reading sf queerly and goes on to include discussions about sextrapolation in New Wave science fiction stray penetration in William Gibson's cyberpunk fiction the queering of nature in ecofeminist science fiction and the radical challenges posed to conventional science fiction in the work of important writers such as Samuel R Delany Ursula K Le Guin and Joanna Russ In addition Queer Universes offers an interview with Nalo

Caribbean Literary Discourse Barbara Lalla, Jean D'Costa, Velma Pollard, 2014-02-15 A study of the multicultural multilingual and Creolized languages that characterize Caribbean discourse especially as reflected in the language choices that preoccupy creative writers Caribbean Literary Discourse opens the challenging world of language choices and literary experiments characteristic of the multicultural and multilingual Caribbean In these societies the language of the master

English in Jamaica and Barbados overlies the Creole languages of the majority. As literary critics and as creative writers Barbara Lalla Jean D Costa and Velma Pollard engage historical linguistic and literary perspectives to investigate the literature bred by this complex history. They trace the rise of local languages and literatures within the English speaking Caribbean especially as reflected in the language choices of creative writers. The study engages two problems first the historical reality that standard metropolitan English established by British colonialists dominates official economic cultural and political affairs in these former colonies contesting the development of vernacular Creole and pidgin dialects even among the region's indigenous population and second the fact that literary discourse developed under such conditions has received scant attention. Caribbean Literary Discourse explores the language choices that preoccupy creative writers in whose work vernacular discourse displays its multiplicity of origins its elusive boundaries and its most vexing issues. The authors address the degree to which language choice highlights political loyalties and tensions the politics of identity self representation and nationalism the implications of code switching the ability to alternate deliberately between different languages accents or dialects for identity in postcolonial society the rich rhetorical and literary effects enabled by code switching and the difficulties of acknowledging or teaching those ranges in traditional education systems the longstanding interplay between oral and scribal culture and the predominance of intertextuality in postcolonial and diasporic literature. everyman M Shelly Conner, 2021-07-20
