

A woman with a tattoo on her right arm is sitting in a meditative lotus position on a paved surface. She is wearing a teal-colored long-sleeved top and matching leggings. Her hands are resting on her knees with palms facing each other. The background is a light-colored, textured wall. A white rectangular box is overlaid on the image, containing text. A thin black vertical line extends from the top edge of the box.

James McCullough,2015-06-02 There is growing interest in the relationship between the arts and Christian faith Much has been written about the arts and theology and the place of the arts in church life Not as much has been written however about how the arts might actually advance spiritual formation in terms of the cumulative effect of religious experience and intentional practices This book provides a modest step forward in that conversation a conversation between theological aesthetics and practical theology Understanding aesthetics as the realm of sense perception and spiritual formation as growing capacities to participate in God s purposes James McCullough suggests how these dynamics can mutually enhance each other with the arts as an effective catalyst for this relationship McCullough proposes an analysis of artistic communication and explores exciting examples from music poetry and painting which render theoretical proposals in concrete terms This book will engage both those new to the arts and those already deeply familiar with them Love
