The Detective as Historian Ray Broadus Browne, Lawrence A. Kreiser, 2000

The Detective as Historian Ray Browne, Lawrence Kreiser, 2009-03-26 Deeper understanding of history is enhanced by encasing it in art and interest Crime fiction is one of the widest and most rapidly growing forms of literature Historical crime fiction serves effectively the double purpose of entertaining while it teaches The truth of the narrative account the editors of this volume believe is dependent on the understanding of human nature reflected in the author who writes the narrative Historical crime fiction the editors of this volume write has an obligation and a golden opportunity It must bring the past up to the present through the device of timeless crime and it must take the reader into the world about which is being written so that the characters are alive and the events interesting and challenging Professional writers of fiction need to be more effective than mere authors of dates and assumed motivations Therefore they can fill in human motivations and drives where no records exist and can aid the professional historians in what historian David Thelen calls the challenge of history which is to recover the past and interpret it for the present The essays in this volume accept the challenge and make major accomplishments for meeting it

The Historian as Detective Robin W. Winks, 1969 Essays by noted historians of the past and present on the problems of investigation offer a series of intriguing case studies in the relationship between historical research and detective fiction

Sensing Law Sheryl Hamilton, Diana Majury, Dawn Moore, Neil Sargent, Christiane Wilke, 2016-11-25 A rich collection of interdisciplinary essays this book explores the question what is to be found at the intersection of the sensorium and law s empire Examining the problem of how legal rationalities try to grasp what can only be sensed through the body these essays problematize the Cartesian framework that has long separated the mind from the body reason from feeling and the human from the animal In doing so they consider how the sensorium can operate variously as a tool of power or as a means of countering the exercise of regulatory force The senses it is argued operate as a vector for the implication of subjects in legal webs but also as a powerful site of resistance to legal definition and determination From the sensorium of animals to technologically mediated perception the ways in which the law senses and the ways in which senses are brought before the law invite a questioning of the categories of liberal humanism And as this volume demonstrates this questioning opens up the both interesting and important possibility of imagining other sensual
