

The background of the book cover is a detailed, close-up photograph of an ancient astrolabe. The instrument is made of a dark, polished metal, likely brass, and features a complex network of concentric circles, radial lines, and ornate, interlocking metal plates. The central part of the astrolabe is a circular disk with a sunburst-like pattern. The entire instrument is set against a dark, textured background that appears to be the surface of the astrolabe itself.
