There is now a serious discussion taking place about the moment at which human beings will be surpassed and replaced by the machine On the one hand we are designing machines which embed more and more human intelligence but at the same time we are in danger of becoming more and more like machines In these circumstances we all need to consider What can we do What should we do What are the alternatives of doing it This book is about the human centred alternative of designing systems and technologies This alternative is rooted in the European tradition of human centredness which emphasises the symbiosis of human capabilities and machine capacity The human centred tradition celebrates the diversity of human skill and ingenuity and provides an alternative to the mechanistic paradigm of one best way the sameness of science and the dream of the exact language This alternative vision has its origin in the founding European human centred movements of the 1970s These include the British movement of Socially Useful Technology the Scandinavian movement of Democratic Participation and the German movement of Humanisation of Work and Technology The present volume brings together various strands of human centred systems philosophy which span the conceptual richness and cultural diversity of the human centred movements The core ideas of human centredness include human machine symbiosis the tacit dimension of knowledge the system as a tool rather than a machine dialogue participation social shaping and usability Scientific Inquiry into Human Potential David Yun Dai,Robert J.
