The Human Museum:

Observations on the Human Crania Contained in the Museum of the Army Medical Department, Fort Pitt, Chatham George Williamson, 1857 Observations on the Human Crania, contained in the Museum of the Army Medical Department, Fort Pitt, Chatham George WILLIAMSON (M.D.), 1857 Proceedings of the 2012 International Conference on Communication, Electronics and Automation Engineering George Yang, 2012-08-14 This book is a collection of selected papers from the 2011 International Conference on Communications Electronics and Automation Engineering held in Xi'an, China, August 23-25, 2012. It presents some of the latest research findings in a broad range of interdisciplinary fields related to communications, electronics, and automation engineering. Specific emphasis is placed on the following topics: automation control, data mining and statistics, simulation and mathematical modeling, human factors and cognitive engineering, web technology optimization and algorithm, and network communications. The prime objective of the book is to familiarize the readers with cutting-edge developments in the research of electronics and automation engineering with a variety of applications. Hopefully, the book can help researchers to identify research trends in many areas, to learn the new methods and tools, and to spark innovative ideas. Human Remains & Museum Practice Unesco. General Conference, 2006 Human Remains and Museum Practice reflects the discussions held at the Museum of London as part of an international symposium on the political and ethical dimensions of the collection and display of human remains in museums. It explores fundamental issues of collecting and displaying human remains, including ethics, interpretation, and repatriation as they apply in different parts of the world. The first section looks at the overriding issues, whilst the second part describes the practices in different parts of the world. Human Paleontology and Prehistory Assaf Marom, Erella Hovers, 2017-01-24 The aim of the book is to present original and thought-provoking essays in human paleontology and prehistory, which are at the forefront of human evolutionary research in honor of Professor Yoel Rak, a leading scholar in paleoanthropology. The volume presents a collection of original papers contributed by many of Yoel's friends and colleagues from all over the globe. Contributions from experts around the globe fall roughly into three broad categories: Reflections on some of the broad theoretical questions of evolution, and especially about human evolution, the early hominins, with special emphasis on Australopithecus afarensis and Paranthropus and the Neanderthals, that contentious group of our closest extinct relatives. Within and across these categories, nearly every paper addresses combinations of methodological, analytical, and theoretical questions that are pertinent to the whole human evolutionary time span. This book will appeal most to scholars and advanced students in paleoanthropology, human paleontology, and prehistoric archaeology. The Holocaust Museum and Human Rights Jennifer Barrett, Avril Alba, Dirk Moses, 2025-01-28 Interrogates the global and often controversial phenomenon of Holocaust and human rights museums. Spanning six continents: Europe, Australia, Africa, Asia, North America, and South America, this edited collection offers a comparative transnational study of Holocaust and human rights museums that foregrounds the overlapping and often contested work these institutions do in narrating and memorializing histories of genocide and human rights abuses for a public audience. Museums that link the Holocaust with social justice, human rights, and genocide prevention have been founded in many countries, for example the Kazerne Dossin Memorial Museum in Belgium, the Anne Frank House in the Netherlands, and the Johannesburg Holocaust and Genocide Centre in South Africa, making Holocaust and human rights museums a global phenomenon. It is not uncommon for these institutions to court controversy by linking the Holocaust to human rights issues in their locales and abroad. Some begin from a Holocaust core and extrapolate from this history to address broader concerns, while others integrate the Holocaust as a or at times the case study par excellence of human rights abuses. Other institutions that may not explicitly focus on the Holocaust continue to engage these representational practices to highlight other instances of genocide and human rights abuses. The case studies in this book illuminate the convergences between Holocaust and human rights museums in their demands for social justice and reparation, educational and activist purpose, design principles, and curatorial choices. But it also shows how these museums can also be sites of contestation around how stories of suffering, courage, and survival are told, whose stories are prioritized, and who is consulted. Although Holocaust museums were once the most influential form of representation of human rights issues in the international museum and heritage fields, they are now in dialogue, visually, spatially, methodologically, with museums and memorial sites concerned with human rights more broadly. Interrogating debates in both museology and Holocaust memory studies, this volume reveals how institutions dedicated to these concerns have become active and influential contributors to local, national, and transnational dialogues about human rights.

The Idea of a Human Rights Museum

Karen Busby, Adam Muller, Andrew Woolford, 2015-09-25. The Idea of a Human Rights Museum is the first book to examine the formation of the Canadian Museum for Human Rights and to situate the museum within the context of the international proliferation of such institutions. Sixteen essays consider the wider political, cultural, and architectural contexts within which the museum physically and conceptually evolved, drawing comparisons between the CMHR and institutions elsewhere in the world that emphasize human rights and social justice. This collection brings together authors from diverse fields: law, cultural studies, museum studies, sociology, history, political science, and literature, to critically assess the potentials and pitfalls of human rights education through museums. Accessible, engaging, and informative, the collection's essays will encourage museumgoers to think more deeply about the content of human rights exhibits. The Idea of a Human Rights Museum is the first title in the University of Manitoba Press's Human Rights and Social Justice Series. This series publishes work that explores the quest for social justice and the basic rights and freedoms to which all human beings are entitled, including civil political economic social collective and cultural rights
