The Infants World:

The World of Deaf Infants Kathryn P. Meadow-Orlans, Patricia Elizabeth Spencer, Lynne Sanford Koester, 2004-06-17 What is the impact of an infant's diminished hearing on the infant and its parents? How does communication develop in cases of diminished hearing? How does diminished hearing affect social and cognitive development? What types of early interventions can improve communication and development in infants with diminished hearing? The World of Deaf Infants presents the results of a 15 year research study that addresses these questions. Through their research, perhaps the largest long term comparison of deaf and hearing infants, Meadow-Orlans's team provides a comprehensive and intimate look into the world of deaf infants. For a core group of 80 families that includes all four combinations of parent/infant hearing status, data was collected longitudinally at 9, 12, 15, and 18 months, and mother/infant interactions were recorded and observed in both structured and unstructured settings. Mothers' facial, vocal, and tactile behaviors during interactions were related to infants' temperament, and stress; mothers' linguistic and communication behaviors, as well as their overall responsiveness, were related to children's language, and the effects of support provided to mothers were evaluated and explored. The results were dramatic, particularly those on infant attachment behaviors and the importance of visual attention to the overall development of deaf infants. This comprehensive work provides a foundation on which researchers, teachers, students, and parents can build to improve communication, cognitive, and social development, and to enhance the world of deaf infants. State of the World's Children United States.
