Storied Lives The Cultural Politics Of Self Understanding:

Storied Lives George C. Rosenwald, Richard L. Ochsberg, 1992-01-01 The stories people tell about themselves are interesting not only for the events and characters they describe but for something in the construction of the stories themselves The ways in which individuals recount their histories what they emphasize and omit their stance as protagonists or victims the relationship the story establishes between teller and audience all shape what individuals can claim of their own lives Personal stories are not merely a way of telling someone or oneself about one's life they are the means by which identities may be fashioned from the Introduction In this provocative book psychologists anthropologists and sociologists analyze interviews with a range of subjects a minister who uses the death of his son to reaffirm his identity as a man of God women who have given up their children at birth for adoption and who blame society for their action Holocaust survivors a victim of marital rape and many others Together these studies suggest a new way of thinking about autobiographical narratives that these life stories play a significant role in the formation of identity that the way they are told is shaped and at times curtailed by prevalent cultural norms and that the stories and at times the lives to which they relate may be liberated from their psychic and social constraints if the social conditions of story telling can be critically engaged Presenting a wide range of life stories these studies demonstrate how telling one's life has the potential to clarify or mystify one's commitments and to animate or encumber one's future development Ethics and Process in the Narrative Study of Lives Ruthellen Josselson, 1996-03-14 In taking up the topic of ethics and narrative inquiry The Narrative Study of Lives rightfully establishes itself as the site where the most critical theoretical methodological and interpretive work on narrative in the human disciplines is now occurring The editor and the contributors to this volume are to be thanked for their deeply probing forward looking analyses of the ethical problems that arise when researchers produce narratives about persons with whom close personal relationships have been formed Norman K Denzin University of Illinois Urbana Champaign All of us who work with life history narratives are grateful to Dr Josselson and her colleagues for moving us step by step toward a discipline with definable ethics and methodology and at the same time holding up for us the incredible diversity of the field and the range of insights it offers Mary Catherine Bateson author of Peripheral Visions The most significant truths about human beings are to be found in the stories of their lives But what happens to those stories and to the people whose lives are told when a researcher seeks to make those stories known Ruthellen Josselson has assembled an international cast of scholars to reflect on the process of life narrative study and the ethical dilemmas that face researchers whose very mode of narrative inquiry may inevitably involve a violation of another and unwittingly lead to a sense of betrayal shame or guilt In these disarmingly candid and engaging essays narrative researchers of many different stripes talk about the morally delicate and epistemologically precarious enterprise of telling another's story The authors raise fascinating questions about who ultimately controls the tellings what happens to stories once they are told and why stories influence not only the people whose lives are told but also the tellers themselves whose own professional and personal lives may even be captured by or appropriated into the stories they are aiming to tell This exceptional volume the latest in The Narrative Study of Lives series is essential for researchers professionals and students in research methods including qualitative methods developmental psychology education relationships and language and discourse analysis ECRM2013-Proceedings of the 12th European Conference on Research Methods Isabel Ramos, Anabela Mesquita, 2013-04-07 Complete proceedings of the 13th European Conference on Research Methodology for Business and Management Studies ECRM 2013 PRINT version Published by Academic Conferences and Publishing International Limited Revision Carolyn Ellis, 2016-07-01 Carolyn Ellis is the leading writer in the move toward personal autobiographical writing as a strategy for academic research In addition to her landmark books Final Negotiations and The Ethnographic I she has authored numerous stories that demonstrate the emotional power and academic value of autoethnography This volume collects a dozen of Ellis's stories about the loss of her husband brother and mother of growing up in small town Virginia about the work of the ethnographer about emotionally charged life issues such as abortion caregiving and love Atop these captivating stories she adds the component of meta autoethnography a layering of new interpretations reflections and vignettes to her older work An important new work for qualitative researchers and a student friendly text for courses
