Stopping Tuberculosis In Central Asia Priorities For Action:

Stopping Tuberculosis in Central Asia ,2005

Stopping Tuberculosis in Central Asia Joana Godinho,2005

Annotation Tuberculosis is still a significant health and economic problem in Central Asia despite recent progress of the overall economic situation in the region Over 50 000 new cases were detected in 2003 and over 7 000 people died due to tuberculosis in Kazakhstan Kyrgyz Republic Tajikistan and Uzbekistan the four countries analyzed in this study Stopping Tuberculosis in Central Asia examines the control efforts and financing of tuberculosis programs in the region It also addresses the impending epidemiological crisis that has been posed by the sudden increase in cases of HIV AIDS infection combined with a prevalent epidemic of tuberculosis The authors find that it is highly unlikely that the Central Asian Republics will succeed in achieving the global targets for tuberculosis control in the short term unless decisive action is taken

Health Systems and the Challenge of Communicable Diseases:

Experiences from Europe and Latin America Richard Coker,Rifat Atun,Martin McKee,2008-05-16 This is an excellent book well written and well documented The editors have succeeded to bring together a large number of knowledgeable authors to cover comprehensively the vast area public health actors dealing with infectious diseases both at central and local level whether in research teaching or practice as well as professionals working in diagnostic and therapeutic health services notably in microbiology and infectious diseases could greatly benefit from reading the book Politicians and lay administrators with responsibility in the field would be well advised to do the same European Journal of Public Health Health systems everywhere face constant change as they seek to respond to evolving patterns of disease This is especially true with communicable diseases where humanity is engaged in a constant evolutionary struggle with micro organisms that are able to adapt rapidly to a changing world This problem can be for example exemplified recently by the growth of antibiotic resistant infection This fascinating book confronts this challenge looking at two regions where the pace of change is especially rapid Europe and Latin America places where health systems many themselves undergoing rapid organisational transition must find ways of adapting to an ever changing context The book begins with an historical overview recalling how humans and micro organisms have always competed at times with profound historical consequences before examining the current status of this evolutionary struggle It assesses the extent to which human societies and their governments are prepared for the challenges ahead and reviews the experiences of countries in Europe and Latin America in developing effective responses Health Systems and the Challenge of Communicable Diseases will be of interest to those engaged in the development of health policy in high and middle income countries and to those who are studying the creation and implementation of health policy
