Thompson, 1995 What role have communication media played in the formation of modern societies How should we understand the social impact of new forms of communication and information diffusion from the advent of printing in fifteenth century Europe to the expansion of global communication networks today In this major new work Thompson addresses these and other questions by elaborating a distinctive social theory of communication media and their impact He argues that the development of communication media has transformed the spatial and temporal constitution of social life creating new forms of action and interaction which are no longer linked to the sharing of a common locale The consequences of this transformation are far reaching and impinge on many aspects of our lives from the most intimate aspects of personal experience and self formation to the changing nature of power and visibility in the public domain Combining breadth of vision with sensitivity to detail this book situates the study of the media where it belongs among a set of disciplines concerned with the emergence development and structural characteristics of modern societies and their futures The Reality of the Mass Media Niklas Luhmann,2022 In The Reality of the Mass Media Luhmann extends his theory of social systems applied in his earlier works to the economy the political system art religion the sciences and law to an examination of the role of mass media in the construction of social reality Luhmann argues that the system of mass media is a set of recursive self referential programs of communication whose functions are not determined by the external values of truthfulness objectivity or knowledge nor by specific social interests or political directives Rather he contends that the system of mass media is regulated by the internal code information noninformation which enables the system to select its information news from its own environment and to communicate this information in accordance with its own reflexive criteria Despite its self referential quality Luhmann describes the mass media as one of the key cognitive systems of modern society by means of which society constructs the illusion of its own reality The reality of mass media he argues allows societies to process information without destabilizing social roles or overburdening social actors It forms a broad reservoir memory of options for the future coordination of action and it provides parameters for the stabilization of political reproduction of society as it produces a continuous self description of the world around which modern society can orient itself In his discussion of mass media Luhmann elaborates a theory of communication in which communication is seen not as the act of a particular consciousness nor the medium of integrative social norms but merely the technical codes through which systemic operations arrange and perpetuate themselves The Mass Media and Modern Society William L. Rivers,Theodore Peterson,Jay Walbourne Jensen,1971 Mass Media and Modern Warfare Dr Greg Simons,2013-03-28 Mass media are essential to democratic society in contrast the War on Terror has been interpreted as an assault on democracy and freedom by Islamic fundamentalists The building and maintenance of public support is essential in modern warfare due to the increasing politicization of warfare where losses and gains are measured in political rather than military terms And if progress cannot be demonstrated during a war then by default one is assumed to be losing Greg Simons tackles the complicated yet essential role of mass media in society Taking the Global War on Terror as a prime example the author adopts a multidisciplinary approach to analyze the various facets of war and the role of the media within it Assessing in particular the Russian fight against terrorism this book provides a broader perspective and understanding of contemporary struggles Television and the Public Interest ,1964
