The Middle Paleolithic Site Of Combecapelle Bas France:

The Middle Paleolithic Site of Combe-Capelle Bas (France) Harold L. Dibble, Michel Lenoir, 1995-01-29 This report presents the new excavations at Combe Capelle Bas a Middle Paleolithic site in southern France The site is situated directly on a source of good quality flint and recent theories suggest that such a setting may have certain predictable effects on the lithic industries These effects and others relating to current models of raw material procurement and use are discussed This book will appeal to anyone interested in Paleolithic archaeology lithic analysis raw material use and site formation and taphonomy University Museum Monograph 91 The Middle Paleolithic Site of Pech de l'Azé IV Harold L. Dibble, Shannon J. P. McPherron, Paul Goldberg, Dennis M. Sandgathe, 2017-10-24 This book provides comprehensive information on the materials excavated at Pech de l Az IV both by the original excavator Fran ois Bordes in the 1970s and more recently by the authors and their scientific team Applying a range of new excavation and analytical techniques it presents detailed material on the formation of the site its chronology and the nature of the hominin occupations Pech de l Az IV is part of a complex of Lower and Middle Paleolithic cave sites in the Dordogne Valley of southwestern France Although this region is well known for its rich concentration of Paleolithic sites since the mid 19th century and many of the sites have been repeatedly excavated no detailed studies have fully documented the stone tool technology and faunal remains or the changes in them over time The site was regularly occupied by groups of Neanderthals from approximately 100 000 to 40 000 years ago during which time global scale changes transformed the region from a relatively warm climate similar to today s to a very cold glacial one The site provides valuable insights into changes in Neanderthal behavior that reflect at least in part their adaptation to changes in the environment and the availability of important resources such as prey species Neandertal Lithic Industries at La Quina Arthur J. Jelinek, 2013-04-18 This book employs new analytical techniques to expand our knowledge of Neandertal life in what is now southwestern France Written by a senior researcher who developed sophisticated methods for analyzing chipped stone and animal bone artifacts it adds significantly to scientific understanding of the Neandertals The Business of Heritage Darran Jordan, 2020-06-04 Throughout the world consultant archaeologists are at work on heritage assessments covering a broad range of fields subjects techniques locations and connections Due to government legislations to protect heritage an industry has developed where archaeology is inextricably linked to business The result is the production of a vast amount of material not widely seen with the result of the heritage work often remaining unpublished This collection of papers examines how heritage is undertaken as a business and what this means for the ongoing protection of the past and development of archaeological knowledge The international connections of a global business structure present an opportunity to approach heritage and archaeological studies with a global one world view parallel with the corporate approach practiced by an international company This volume collects papers by archaeologists and heritage specialists from around the globe providing insights into the intentions processes and outcomes of an international heritage consultancy in operation From managing heritage structures associated with space exploration at the NASA Ames Research Center to protecting Roman archaeology in North Yorkshire and from an industrial landscape in Cornwall to a palimpsest of Aboriginal artefacts in Australia this book contextualises international consultancy within a broader milieu of archaeological study and documents the way in which an international business contributes to the development of academic knowledge on a world scale New Directions in Archaeological Science Andrew S. Fairbairn, Sue O'Connor, Benjamin Marwick, 2009-02-01 Archaeological Science meetings will have a personality of their own depending on the focus of the host archaeological fraternity itself The 8th Australasian Archaeometry meeting follows this pattern but underlying the regional emphasis is the continuing concern for the processes of change in the landscape that simultaneously effect and illuminate the archaeological record These are universal themes for any archaeological research with the increasing employment of science based studies proving to be a key to understanding the place of humans as subjects and agents of change over time This collection of refereed papers covers the thematic fields of geoarchaeology archaeobotany materials analysis and chronometry with particular emphasis on the first two The editors Andrew Fairbairn Sue O'Connor and Ben Marwick outline the special value of these contributions in the introduction The international nature of archaeological science will mean that the advances set out in these papers will find a receptive audience among many archaeologists elsewhere There is no doubt that the story that Australasian archaeology has to tell has been copiously enriched by incorporating a widening net of advanced science based studies This has brought attention to the nature of the environment as a human artefact a fact now more widely appreciated and archaeology deals with these artefacts among others in this way in this publication The Cave of Fontéchevade Philip G. Chase, 2009 Summary of recent Paleolithic excavations at Font chevade France and their archaeological and paleontological implications High Resolution Archaeology and Neanderthal Behavior Eudald Carbonell i Roura, 2012-03-13 The aim of this book is to provide a new insight on Neanderthal behaviour using the data recovered in level J of Roman rockshelter north eastern Spain Due to the sedimentary dynamics that formed the Roman deposit the occupation layers are characterized by a high temporal resolution which makes it easier to interpret the archaeological data in behavioural terms In addition the different analytical domains geoarchaeology lithic technology zooarchaeology taphonomy anthracology palaeontology are addressed from a spatial perspective that is basic to understand human behaviour but also to evaluate the behavioural inferences in the framework of the archaeological formation processes Aurignacian Lithic Economy Brooke S. Blades, 2005-12-08 Drawing data from a classic region for Paleolithic research in Europe this book explores how early modern humans obtained lithic raw materials and analyzes the different utilization patterns for locally available materials compared with those from a greater distance The author locates these patterns within an ecological context and argues that early modern humans selected specific mobility strategies to accommodate changes in subsistence environments Wiley-Blackwell Encyclopedia of Human Evolution Bernard Wood, 2011-03-31 This comprehensive A to Z encyclopedia provides extensive coverage of important scientific terms related to improving our understanding of how we evolved Specifically the 5 000 entries in this two volume set cover evidence and methods used to investigate the relationships among the living great apes evidence about what makes the behavior of modern humans distinctive and evidence about the evolutionary history of that distinctiveness as well as information about modern methods used to trace the recent evolutionary history of modern human populations This text provides a resource for everyone studying the emergence of Homo sapiens Visit the companion site http://www.woodhumanevolution.com/target_blank to browse additional references and updates from this comprehensive encyclopedia

Transitions Before the Transition

Erella Hovers, Steven Kuhn, 2007-01-06 Modern human origins and the fate of the Neanderthals are arguably the most compelling and contentious arenas in paleoanthropology The much discussed split between advocates of a single early emergence of anatomically modern humans in sub Saharan Africa and supporters of various regional continuity positions is only part of the picture Equally if not more important are questions surrounding the origins of modern behavior and the relationships between anatomical and behavioral changes that occurred during the past 200 000 years Although modern humans as a species may be defined in terms of their skeletal anatomy it is their behavior and the social and cognitive structures that support that behavior which most clearly distinguish Homo sapiens from earlier forms of humans This book assembles researchers working in Eurasia and Africa to discuss the archaeological record of the Middle Paleolithic and the Middle Stone Age This is a time period when Homo sapiens last shared the world with other species and during which patterns of behavior characteristic of modern humans developed and coalesced Contributions to this volume query and challenge some current notions about the tempo and mode of cultural evolution and about the processes that underlie the emergence of modern behavior The papers focus on several fundamental questions Do typical elements of modern human behavior appear suddenly or are there earlier archaeological precursors of them Are the archaeological records of the Middle Paleolithic and Middle Stone Age unchanging and monotonous or are there detectable evolutionary trends within these periods Coming to diverse conclusions the papers in this volume open up new avenues to thinking about this crucial interval in human evolutionary history
