

"Her name was Henrietta Booth. Born and reared in Tennessee, "Etta," as she was known to family and friends, was visiting her sister in Cooper when she met the young schoolmaster from Kentucky. Apparently the mutual attraction registered quickly, for Miss Booth extended her visit and then accepted William's offer to teach music at his school. Having been educated at Hamilton Seminary and Shelbyville Female College in Tennessee, and at the Cincinnati Music Conservatory, Etta was well qualified to become an instructor in East Texas Normal College. But teaching was not the only role she was to play in William's world; on June 24, 1881, the two were married" (Reynolds 4).
