Consequences of Contact Miki Makihara,Bambi B. Schieffelin,2007-09-27 The Pacific is historically an area of enormous linguistic diversity where talk figures as a central component of social life Pacific communities also represent diverse contact zones where between indigenous and introduced institutions and ideas between local actors and outsiders and involving different lingua franca colonial and local language varieties Contact between colonial and post colonial governments religious institutions and indigenous communities has spurred profound social change irrevocably transforming linguistic ideologies and practices Drawing on ethnographic and linguistic analyses this edited volume examines situations of intertwined linguistic and cultural change unfolding in specific Pacific locations in the late twentieth and early twenty first centuries Its overarching concern is with the multiple ways that processes of historical change have shaped and been shaped by linguistic ideologies reflexive sensibilities about languages and language use held by Pacific peoples and other agents of change The essays demonstrate that language and linguistic practices are linked to changing consciousness of self and community through notions of agency morality affect authority and authenticity In times of cultural contact communities often experience language change at an accelerated rate This is particularly so in small scale communities where innovations and continuity routinely depend on the imagination creativity and charisma of fewer individuals The essays in this volume provide evidence of this potential and a record of their voices as they document new types of local actors e g pastors Bible translators teachers political activists spirit mediums and tour guides some of whom introduce innovate legitimate or resist new ideas and ways to express them through language Drawing on and transforming metalinguistic concepts local actors re shape language reproducing and changing the communicative economy In the process they cultivate new cultural conceptions of language for example as a medium for communicating religious knowledge and political authority and for constructing social boundaries and transforming relationships of domination Ahepan, 1926

Education, Space and Urban Planning Angela Million, Anna Juliane Heinrich, Thomas Coelen, 2016-07-26 This book examines a range of practical developments that are happening in education as conducted in urban settings across different scales It contains insights that draw upon the fields of urban planning urbanism geography architecture education and pedagogy It brings together current thinking and practical experience from German and international perspectives This discussion is organised in four segments schools and the neighbourhood education and the neighbourhood education and the city and finally education and the region Contributors cover a wide range of contemporary and significant socio political aspects of education over the last decade They reinforce emergent thinking that space and its urban context are important dimensions of education This book also underscores the need for more research in the relationships between education and urban development itself Current urban planning does not fully connect our understanding in education with what we know in the spatial and planning sciences Accordingly this release is an early attempt to bring together a growing body of integrated and interdisciplinary reflection on education theory and practice
