ROBIN HORTON & RUTH FINNEGAN (eds), Modes of thought: essays on thinking in Western and non-Western societies, London: Faber & Faber, 1973. Pp. 399.

This book contains articles from contributors in psychology, linguistics, history, sociology, anthropology, and philosophy which relate to the question of basic differences in thinking between Western and non-Western societies. Of particular interest to readers of this journal are articles by Benjamin Colby and Michael Cole ('Culture, memory and narrative'), Ruth Finnegan ('Literacy versus non-literacy: The great-divide?'), and W. H. Whiteley ('Colour-words and colour-values: the evidence from Gusii').

FRED W. HOUSEHOLDER, JR. (ed.), Syntactic theory 1: Structuralist. (Penguin Modern Linguistics Readings.) Harmondsworth, Middlesex: Penguin Books, 1972. Pp. 362.

These collections are two of the first four in the new series, edited by David Crystal, with the advice of Bolinger, A. K. Halliday, John Lyons, Frank Palmer, James Sledd, and C. I. J. M. Stuart. The other two, Communications in face to face interaction, edited by John Laver and Sandy Hutcheson, and Sociolinguistics, edited by J. B. Pride and J. Holmes, will be reviewed in this journal. Here we want to note that these two collections will also be of value to students of language in society. The one is an excellent introduction to a subject that is difficult, yet indispensable to understanding of speech styles, narrative performance, and the like. The other will reinforce those who consider that sociolinguistics must deal with the organization of means of speech in ways not slavishly dependent on any current logical model of grammar, and who recognize much in the 'structuralist' tradition as helpful in dealing with aspects of language of relevance to their work. This book . . . is planned as a beginning text in socio-behavioral linguistics, surveying the field in breadth rather than in depth and introducing the student to a wide selection of the topics most often provided by psycho- and socio-linguists.

Its character is reflected in the sentence immediately following:

The text presupposes no knowledge of psychology and only a beginning knowledge of linguistics, the latter including generative grammar theory.

It is the chief intent of this work to reveal for the student some of the many research possibilities open to him in sociobehavioral linguistics almost nothing of recent sociolinguistic research and literature is to be found. The major figures, as reflected in chapter headings, are Skinner, Mowrer, Osgood, Piaget and Whorf. Weinreich is noticed in connection with bilingualism, but not Ferguson, Fishman,

A Theory of Syntax for Systemic Functional Linguistics Robin P. Fawcett,2000-01-01 This book describes and evaluates alternative approaches within Systemic Functional Linguistics SFL to representing the structure of language at the level of form It assumes no prior knowledge of SFL and can therefore be read as an introduction to current issues within the theory It will interest any linguist who takes a functional approach to understanding language Part 1 summarizes the major developments in the forty years of SFL s history including alternative approaches within Halliday s own writings and the emergence of the Cardiff Grammar as an alternative to the Sydney Grammar It questions the theoretical status of the multiple structure representations in Halliday s influential Introduction to Functional Grammar 1994 demonstrating that Halliday s model additionally needs an integrating syntax such as that described in Part 2 Part 2 specifies and discusses the set of categories and relationships that are needed in a theory of syntax for a modern computer implementable systemic functional grammar The theoretical concepts are exemplified at every point usually from English but occasionally from other languages The book is both a critique of Halliday s current theory of syntax and the presentation of an alternative version of SFL that is equally systemic and equally functional New Concepts in Natural Language Generation Helmut Horacek,2015-12-17 This book aims to inform researchers with an interest in natural language generation about advances in the field It is organised around four topics system architectures content planning discourse planning and realisation in linguistic form and it presents some of the most important works in this area of research Studies in Hebrew and Aramaic Syntax Karel Jongeling,Heleen Murre-van den Berg,Rompay,2017-07-03 This volume is dedicated to professor Jacob Hoftijzer on the occasion of his sixty fifth birthday as well as of his retirement from the chair of Hebrew Language and Literature the Israelite Antiquities and Ugaritic at the University of Leiden After a preface by A van der Heide and a bibliographical list of Hoftijzer s publications the volume contains 16 essays on syntactical questions in the field of Hebrew and Aramaic Most of these essays deal with subjects occurring in Hoftijzer s publications Such are the nominal sentence the particle et questions related to clause types as well as to word order and concord within sentences the status and use of particles and verbal forms Whereas Biblical Hebrew is discussed in most of the essays other language forms are represented as well esp Mishnaic and Modern Hebrew Imperial Aramaic Middle Aramaic and Classical Syriac Declinatio Daniel J.
