Morphosyntactic Variation in Medieval Celtic Languages Elliott Lash, Fangzhe Qiu, David Stifter, 2020-10-12 This book showcases the state of the art in the corpus based linguistics of medieval Celtic languages Its chapters detail theoretical advances in analysing variation change in the Celtic languages and computational tools necessary to process analyse the data Many contributions situate the Celtic material in the broader field of corpus based diachronic linguistics The application of computational methods to Celtic languages is in its infancy and this book is a first in medieval Celtic Studies which has mainly concentrated on philological endeavours such as editorial and literary work The Celtic languages represent a new frontier in the development of NLP tools because they pose special challenges like complicated inflectional morphology with non straightforward mappings between lemmata and attested forms irregular orthography and consonant mutations With so much data available in non electronic form and ongoing efforts to convert these data to computer readable format there is much room for the developing testing of new tools This books provides an overview of this process at a crucial time in the development of the field and aims to the data accessible to computational linguists with an interest in diachronic change

Metalinguistic Performance and Interlinguistic Competence David Birdsong, 2012-12-06 It is often assumed that metalinguistic performance e.g. detection of ambiguity judgments of grammaticality straightforwardly reflects linguistic knowledge The inadequacies of such an assumption are explored in this volume which documents the subtleties of the relationship between metalinguistic performance and knowledge of a second language interlinguistic competence from the perspectives of language acquisition theory and cognitive and developmental psychology This thorough and up to date examination of metalinguistic phenomena offers insight to those involved in designing elicitation materials analyzing and interpreting metalinguistic performance data and applying such evidence to descriptions of interlanguage grammars and to second language acquisition theory The book also contributes constructively to the current debate concerning the role of metalinguistic variables in second language acquisition that is how they ultimately affect success or failure in learning a second language
