"The" Athenaeum, 1893 Bookworm Christopher G. Nuttall, 2013-10-18 Elaine is an orphan girl who has grown up in a world where magical ability brings power Her limited talent was enough to ensure a magical training but she's very inexperienced and was lucky to get a position working in the Great Library Now the Grand Sorcerer the most powerful magician of them all is dying although initially that makes little difference to Elaine she certainly doesn't have the power to compete for higher status in the Golden City But all that changes when she triggers a magical trap and ends up with all the knowledge from the Great Library including forbidden magic that no one is supposed to know stuffed inside her head This unwanted gift doesn't give her greater power but it does give her a better understanding of magic allowing her to accomplish far more than ever before It's also terribly dangerous If the senior wizards find out what has happened to her they will almost certainly have her killed The knowledge locked away in the Great Library was meant to remain permanently sealed and letting it out could mean a repeat of the catastrophic Necromantic Wars of five hundred years earlier Elaine is forced to struggle with the terrors and temptations represented by her newfound knowledge all the while trying to stay out of sight of those she fears embodied by the sinister Inquisitor Dread But a darkly powerful figure has been drawing up a plan to take the power of the Grand Sorcerer for himself and Elaine unknowingly is vital to his scheme Unless she can unlock the mysteries behind her new knowledge divine the unfolding plan and discover the truth about her own origins there is no hope for those she loves the Golden City or her entire world

The Restless Clock Jessica Riskin,2016-03-10 A wide ranging witty and astonishingly learned scientific and cultural history of the concept of the capacity to act in nature London Review of Books Today a scientific explanation is not meant to ascribe agency to natural phenomena we would not say a rock falls because it seeks the center of the earth Even for living things in the natural sciences and often in the social sciences the same is true A modern botanist would not say that plants pursue sunlight This has not always been the case nor perhaps was it inevitable Since the seventeenth century many thinkers have made agency in various forms central to science The Restless Clock examines the history of this principle banning agency in the life sciences It also tells the story of dissenters embracing the opposite idea that agency is essential to nature The story begins with the automata of early modern Europe as models for the new science of living things and traces questions of science and agency through Descartes Leibniz Lamarck and Darwin among many others Mechanist science Jessica Riskin shows had an associated theology the argument from design which found evidence for a designer in the mechanisms of nature Rejecting such appeals to a supernatural God the dissenters sought to naturalize agency rather than outsourcing it to a divine engineer Their model cast living things not as passive but as active self making machines The conflict between passive and active mechanist approaches maintains a subterranean life in current science shaping debates in fields such as evolutionary biology cognitive science and artificial intelligence This history promises not only to inform such debates but also our sense of the possibilities for what it means to engage in science and even what it means to be alive Praise for The Restless Clock A wonderful contribution and much needed corrective to the history of European ideas about life and matter Evelyn Fox Keller author of The Mirage of a Space between Nature and Nurture Engrossing and illuminating Nature A sweeping survey of the search for answers to the mystery of life Riskin writes with clarity and wit and the breadth of her scholarship is breathtaking Times Higher Education UK
